EX-CONVICT KILLS WOMAN

ACCUSED ENDS LIFE WHEN CORNERED BY CLEVELAND POLICE

Dead Man Believed To Be "Overall Band-
dit" There

CLEVELAND, Oct. 12.—Cornered in an upstairs room of a house on Lorain Avenue here by police who sought him in connection with the murder late yesterday of Mrs. Harriett Steinbrenner, 33, young Lakewood matron, Walter Chaney, 36, ex-Ohio penitentiary convict committed suicide today, according to police.

Mrs. Steinbrenner was fatally wounded three times late yesterday while she was attending a tea and bridge party in a Clifton Boulevard apartment.

Chaney, until a week ago, had roomed at the Steinbrenner home. It was he, Mrs. Irene Mount, hostess at the bridge party told police, who called at her apartment and asked to speak to Mrs. Steinbrenner. Mrs. Mount said that a few minutes after her guest joined the man, she heard angry conversations from the hallway and then suddenly, a despairing scream: "Don't shoot, Walter. Don't shoot."

An instant later three bullet shots rang out. Mrs. Steinbrenner's body was found lying in the hallway. Chaney, according to police, is believed to have been the notorious "overall bandit" who has been terrorizing tea rooms and hotels during past weeks.

Mrs. Steinbrenner's automobile, which she had reported stolen last Thursday, was parked in front of the apartment. Chaney, it was said, had often borrowed it. On the edge of the automobile seat lay a pair of blue overalls, similar to those worn by the robber who recently held up Lakewood's fashionable Lake Shore Hotel.

Mrs. Steinbrenner, until two days ago had been working in the hotel. Police are cashing on the theory that the slain woman may have suspected Chaney as the robber and that he killed her, fearing she might tip him off as the hold-up man.

CAPITAL GIN PARTY RESULTS IN MURDER

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—A wild party and gin caused the killing of one of four merry-makers early today. William Douglas, 40, boiler maker at the navy yard, was shot three times by Patrolman B. F. Howze.

The officer said he intruded on the party because of the noise and was attacked by Douglas and Thomas E. Smoot, Baltimore, Va., his male companion. Howze said he fired three shots when Douglas had him on the floor beating him with his own nightstick.

The two hostesses who cringed in a back room during the brawl were held as witnesses. They are Mrs. May V. Campbell, 23 and Miss Margaret E. Fry, 23, both telephone operators.

PILOT KILLED AND STUDENT INJURED

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 12.—A flying instructor is dead here today and a student aviator is in a hospital suffering from injuries which will probably prove fatal as the result of an airplane crash, near here, yesterday.

Leonard Wheeler, formerly of Indianapolis, is the dead man, and Ford Burke, a youth, will die, doctors declared.

Wheeler was piloting a duel control biplane when it went into a tail spin at a height of about 2,400 feet and crashed into a field. The plane did not catch afire.

Makers of standard products know the magic of the word "guaranteed" in heightening selling value. The machines advertised as above had a double guarantee—that of their manufacturer and that of GAZETTE CLASSIFIED advertising. The combination was a hard one to beat and as a consequence, the machines were sold by the time the ad expired. GAZETTE CLASSIFIED will put just as strong a guarantee on your ad—

CALL 111

GIRL WRITER CHOKED TO DEATH

Miss Marjorie O'Donnell, 24, left, formerly of Oil City, Pa., a writer of articles, was found strangled to death in a fashionable Washington, D. C., hotel after Dexter Churchill Dayton, 25, right, told a bellboy: "I've just killed my sweetheart; you'd better call the police." Dayton, who says he came from Kansas City, Mo., told police, they say, that after choking the girl he had intended to commit suicide, but fell asleep in a drunken stupor and awakened twelve hours later to find the dead girl in his arms.

GRAF ZEPPELIN CREW REBELS AGAINST FLIGHT TO NORTH POLE

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, Oct. 12.—In order to carry out the projected plans for a dirigible flight to the North Pole in the Graf Zeppelin, Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the airship, may be called in today by officials of the Zeppelin company to induce the crew to make the journey.

The polar flight was to have been commanded by Dr. Fridtjof Nansen famous explorer, and was scheduled to cover about 17,000 miles. Although declining to give their reason, the crew unanimously decided not to make the voyage. It is understood that financial considerations may be involved.

Dr. Eckener decided some time ago he would not participate in the expedition because of the state of his health. Captain Ernest Lehmann, chief

LEARN SLAIN GIRL FOUGHT OFF KILLER

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—That pretty Miss Marjorie O'Donnell, of Pittsburgh, Pa., strangled to death by Dexter Churchill Dayton of Kansas City, in a jealous and drunken rage, had put up a much harder fight for her life than the 25-year old insurance salesman indicated in his confession, was the theory of local police today.

It was reported the undertaker who prepared the girl's body for burial, had found both wrists broken.

This was not noted at the coroner's autopsy. Dayton told police he strangled the "sweetheart" as she slept. He said she awakened but after struggling some, gradually lapsed into unconsciousness. There was nothing in his story about a struggle fierce enough to fracture her wrists. Some blood was found on his shirt and her evening dress, and there were scratches on her legs and arms.

TWO GUNMEN SLAIN IN STORE HOLD-UP

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 12.—A youthful suspect was arrested here today in connection with the Long-fellow pharmacy holdup here late last night in which two of a trio of gunmen were slain by Patrolman Harry W. Soetza as they attempted to rob the store.

The two slain robbers were identified by police as Arthur Ciminelli of East Cleveland, and Mike Genepo of Cleveland. The third of the bandit gang was acting as a "look-out" for his confederates. He escaped. He is believed to be the suspect who was arrested this morning.

Patrolman Soetza, who had been detailed to the pharmacy at the request of its proprietor since January 13, shot down the two gunmen from a hiding place in the drug store when they attempted to "stick up" the place. The store, in less than a year previous to January 13, had been held up four times.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—The muddled situation in China has been further complicated by a formal declaration of war by the Nationalist government on General Feng Yu-Hsiang, a Shanghai dispatch to the Daily Express today declared. Feng's troops, the dispatch added, have swarmed over the north-western province and are threatening Hankow.

The Nationalist government has ordered a punitive expedition against Feng, who has declared himself in favor of General Chang Far-Kwai, leader of a vast insurrectionary army which has been threatening the peace of China for several weeks.

Nationalist troops have commandeered a score of Chinese steamers and a huge amount of munitions to aid in the expedition against Feng, according to a Central News dispatch from Shanghai, a rigid censorship has been imposed.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 12.—Conditions at the Girls' Industrial School, Delaware, are to be discussed at a luncheon and conference here this afternoon between Welfare Director H. H. Griswold and Prosecuting Attorney W. W. Hill, Delaware.

In advance of the conference Griswold expressed his willingness to co-operate with Prosecutor Hill in an investigation of the situation "so long as such investigation does not affect the morale of the institution."

Hill this week announced his intention of conducting a grand jury probe into allegations of immoral conditions and incompetency at the Delaware home. Common Pleas Judge Harry W. Jewell, at Delaware, granted Hill's request for a special grand jury. The jurors probably will assemble at Delaware next Wednesday.

WEIRD PRACTICES OF CULT REVEALED BY INVESTIGATION

Mother Chained To Bed
To Assist Belief, Is Said

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 12.—Weird practices indulged in by members of the cult of the "Great Eleven" to permit its leader, Mrs. May Otis Blackburn, to establish communication with the occult world continued to come to light today through police investigation.

How she submitted to being chained to a bed for over two months was told by Mrs. Jennie Blackburn, mother of the order's leader, in order to help her daughter realize her belief that she could join her soul with the etherial world.

The body of Willa Rhoads, 16-year-old "princess" of the cult, was kept in embalming spices to await her resurrection and thus aid in Mrs. Blackburn's communications "with the angels," authorities have found.

Burial of mules and puppies, were a part of the rituals meant to assist the woman who is now in jail on charges of defrauding Clifford Danney, wealthy oil man, of $50,000, police say.

So too will be the masterpieces of liberal thought, written by Nietzsche, Karl Marx, Leo Tolstoy and other philosophers.

LINDBERGH LEAVE MIAMI TIRED AFTER LONG AIR JOURNEY

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 12.—Delayed twenty-four hours by unfavorable weather and the desire to rest after their strenuous tropical journey, Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh were to leave here today in their private touring plane for New York.

Now that their work of opening up a new air mail line to South America and exploring the dense jungles of Guatemala and British Honduras is over, the Lindberghs are anxious to return home. Although both the lone eagle and his wife are in fine physical condition despite their arduous journey, they confessed that flying more than 9,000 miles in twenty days was a trying proposition, and allowed clouded skies and threats of storms hold them here for twenty-four hours longer than they intended to remain.

Dr. Alfred A. Kidder, of the Carnegie Institute, who accompanied the Lindberghs on the exploratory flight, paid generous tribute to the airman's work in behalf of archeology, stating that five years of work had been accomplished in the twenty-five hours during which Col. Lindbergh piloted his plane over the tropic jungles.

Dr. Kidder said that the flight had resulted in discovery of important Mayan ruins, built and inhabited by a civilization which flourished 1,500 years ago.

Miss Adeline Malone, bride elect of Mr. William Horner, whose wedding will be an event of this month, was honored at a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. Roy Jones, E. Third St., Friday evening arranged by Mrs. C. G. Stearns (Marjorie Jones).

Mrs. Jones' home was beautifully decorated with early fall flowers with a color scheme of yellow and white being carried out.

Miss Eleanor McDonnell entertained with several musical selections during the evening. Games and contests were played.

The hostesses served a delicious refreshment course at the close of the evening's entertainment which consisted of ice cream in the shape of a diamond ring and cake.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard LeSourd, Cincinnati, are announcing the birth of twin girls, Friday. The babies have not been named.

Mr. Robert Jenner who recently accompanied Miss Elsie Grotte to California by motor, returned home Friday evening after spending some time on the West Coast.

ELABORATE "RALLY DAY" PROGRAM WILL BE CONDUCTED HERE

Elaborate preparations were completed Saturday for unique Rally Day services at the First Presbyterian Church at 10 a. m. Sunday, according to D. D. Jones, superintendent of the Sunday School.

A feature perfected by the committees includes "Making a Hymn", in which each department of the ordinary Sunday School or Church Hymnal is to be stressed by a member of the organization who takes care of that part of the church work.

Pages especially costumed will bring in separate pages of a hymn, which will thus be constructed before the eyes of the worshippers. The Session of the church will have a representative who will stress the "spiritual" department of the Hymnal, the board of deacons will refer to the stewardship department, the Ladies Aid to the church, the missionary societies to the mission hymns "Grace notes" for the background for the decorations, the notes filling the air in the auditorium.

Short background sketches have been prepared so that several hymns and hymn tune stories will be given during the course of the service. A large attendance is expected and the uniformed pages will take a special offering to finance the new Sunday School Hymnals, with hopes that the collection will reach from $90 to $100. The public is invited to the service.

NOVELS

Ertz—"Galaxy"

The story of one woman's life, from her birth in 1862 to her death in London after the war. The galaxy of scenes, events and characters that make up the story of Laura's life is spread against a background of change from the middle of the nineteenth century to the present.

Benefield—"Little Clown Lost"

A romance in which the same trend as that in the "Chicken-wagon family" is seen. Whimsical and sentimental, the story is quite charmingly told. There is a distinct popular appeal in the little clown who loves so well and sacrifices so much.

Kay-Smith—"Village Doctor"

Dr. Philip Green, seeking to restore his failing health, comes to a tiny Sussex village. Induced by his loneliness he marries the daughter of a prosperous farmer, who, to satisfy her ambition deserts her village sweetheart to marry Philip. In this quiet novel is told the story of a devoted doctor whose simple goodness, won the hearts of his patients, and finally softened the hard heart of his wife. The New York Times says of the "Village Doctor": "Miss Kay-Smith's hand seems to have slowed up a bit, but the style is still calm and idealistic and the characterization of the doctor stands out as a mellow bit of portraiture."

Tupper—"The River"

The story tells of the love of Alen John, a young construction engineer, for Rosalee, a girl of the camps. The sound of the river runs through the book, which is well written, but somewhat vague.

Moon—"Dark Star"

Because Nancy was an illegitimate child, everyone in the little Scotch village where she lived expected her to go wrong. But, throughout her young life Nancy lives up to the ideal of the good blood she believes is in her veins. When, in the end, the love she has given is thrust back upon her, she dies as she fancies one of her heritage should. The Nation says, "Miss Moon has written a distinguished and absorbing book. There is subtle music in the prose and a penetrating comprehension of human weakness which will make the story of Nancy linger long in the memory."

DAMAGE CASE GOES INTO FIFTH DAY

The fifth day of the jury trial of the $10,000 damage suit of Mrs. Opal Bowes, Osborn, against the C. C. C. and St. Louis Railway Co., began in Common Pleas Court Saturday. The action is based on alleged personal injuries sustained when an auto also occupied by her husband, being driven by Philip Frokin, Osborn, who was demonstrating the car to Mr. and Mrs. Bowes, was struck by a train at the Xenia Ave. crossing in Osborn. It is charged that automatic signal lights at the crossing were not functioning.

The tablet is being made at the Antioch Bronze Foundry at Yellow Springs, and is being presented as a memorial to the veterans by friends and relatives of the members of the infantry. A fine of $125 and costs, aggregating $128.50 was imposed upon Harvey Fox, 40, Xenia, when arraigned before Mayor C. Q. Hildebrandt at Wilmington Thursday on a charge of possessing liquor. Fox is said to have been in possession of a memorandum book which contained the names of several Wilmington residents whom he claimed owed him money for liquor.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THE PROMISE FULFILLED—He hath filled the hungry with good things; and the rich he hath sent empty away. He hath holden his servant Israel in remembrance of his mercy; As he spake to our fathers, to Abraham, and to his seed forever.—Luke 1:33, 34.

WHAT FIRE DOES

The devastating effect of fire on American industry is but little known or understood. No doubt the following figures will be illuminating to many business men.

In a survey recently made of a hundred plants that had been destroyed by fire, it was found that forty-three did not resume operations, fourteen suffered reductions in credit rating, seventeen failed to issue a financial statement and twenty-six lost business. The necessity for curtailing such sweeping losses appears urgent.

The problem of reducing fire waste in industry may be attacked from the standpoint of building and engineering. Those interested will receive aid if they apply to one of the inspection bureaus maintained by the stock fire insurance companies for the building and engineering regulations of The National Board of Fire Underwriters.

In a general way building can be improved by a greater use of incombustible materials and the elimination of large open areas. Fires spread with utmost rapidity when unhindered by dividing walls of any kind and when burnable products are stored in large quantities. In smaller areas, formed by fireproof partitions or walls, and metal doors, flames cannot gain such momentum. Hazardous processes, particularly, should be cut off by strong fire walls or, better still, housed in separate buildings.

From the engineering standpoint, most industries have fire hazards peculiar to their own processes and their fire prevention problems require separate analysis by a qualified engineer. Such a study will reveal which methods of operation and maintenance will be most effective in eliminating fire dangers. That time so spent would be well worth while appears evident from the loss statistics quoted.

A hard-boiled, blasé attitude indicates that the person who has succeeded to it has shut his eyes and ears to opportunities to see, hear and learn.

Wouldn't it be a good thing for the senate to abolish the position of chaplain and devote the money saved to paying an official alienist?

Autumn might not be so melancholy if it did not coincide with so many primary and secondary elections.

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK—It took Milano, the Upper Broadway bootblack, 30 years to amass a fortune of $43,000 shining shoes and cleaning hats. Then he bade adieu forever to back-breaking toil and after spending a month trying to get his hands clean, had Moe Levy make him a silk-lined suit and went down to Florida, where a gentleman with a seersucker suit and a glad, effulgent smile started a $42,000 demonstration of how Grant took Richmond.

He's back now at the old stand, with an added line of care in his Socratic phiz, trying to kid himself into believing that money isn't everything in life.

THE BRIGHTER SIDE
A bootlegger's brat came upon a little colored boy playing ball in the street.

"Toss it to me," urged the bootlegger's brat.

The colored boy threw the ball, the Wop pocketed it and walked off. A passing clergyman paused to gauge the pickaninny's grief.

And I have personal knowledge of where at least a very small portion of last Sunday's collection went. As ye have done it to the least of these...

A PONY PASSES ON
For five years in sun and rain and windy weather, Mr. Antonio, the itinerant tin-type man, and Marcel, his spotted pony, traveled the labyrinthine of Tenement Town where countless grimy youngsters had come to regard their appearance, twice a year, as inevitable as spring-time or autumn.

The geraniums budded and bloomed on the tenement sills last April; but the pony failed to appear. Summer dragged its hot and dusty length; school re-opened, and he and behold, a day or two ago, the old tin-type man and Marcel, but Marcel was perched on a platform atop a diminutive wagon drawn by a tired old mare. The taxidermist had done his best by the spotted horse.

THE WAY of the WORLD

By GROVE PATTERSON

EXPERTS AND MODELS
Women, of course, are better judges of men than men themselves. One listens with interest and respect when the Women's Business and Professional Club of an Oklahoma City votes a silver loving cup to the "model husband." The model is described as a man "who never drinks more than enough, swears only in the presence of ladies, drives a new flivver, uses tobacco in every form, plays a moderate game of golf, and fills in at bridge only when forced to."

THE GAY DUTCH
Speaking of styles, there is nothing new in the bright colored or sun-tan stockings now so popular on the avenue. Intimate history tells us that a few hundred years ago when New York was a colony of Holland, Dutch women wore yellow, green, blue, scarlet, brown or white stockings. Much that passes for new is revival. Much that passes for progress is merely change.

SALES RESISTANCE
Some men are considered "hard-boiled" prospects because they have so much sales resistance. If you naturally have a fair amount of sales resistance, be glad. You need it to keep on the road and not get to wondering in the swamp. The power of salesmanship is a dangerous thing. It will get you if you don't watch out. Perhaps it should get you, but be sure that your calm and unexcited judgment tells you the proposition is a sound one. Although we may not be absolutely sure we are right we ought to have the courage to follow our best thought and our most careful judgment.

BACKWARD BOSTON
"Strange Interlude," probably Eugene O'Neill's greatest play, which won the Pulitzer prize for being the best production in a year, has been banned from Boston. "Strange Interlude" is a picture of life—not idealized and not softened. It is no pollyanna play. It sets forth the emotions, actions, and reactions of intelligent people. Strange that so intelligent a city as Boston is supposed to be feared to look facts in the face.

Boston also barred "Hatrack," a realistic and well written story in July number of Scribner's Magazine, containing an installment of one of the best novels of the war—"A Farewell to Arms," by Ernest Hemingway.

UP TO MA AND PA
Jacksonville, Florida, school authorities make a wise decision when they announce that sun-baked dresses, bare legs, and girls in knickers are no longer a school concern. It's a home problem, not a school problem.

Says the superintendent: "It's up to the mothers. If they think their daughters look attractive that way, then they can come to school."

The employment of specialists in certain outstanding phases of the coming census such as distribution, unemployment, agriculture, occupations and manufactures and the intensive training of the force of 33 supervisors who will supervise the activities of approximately 100,000 enumerators at this time in the preliminary work of organizing for the decennial census of 1930.

The specialists will be recognized authorities in their respective fields and they will cooperate with the regular census force in deciding upon the questionnaires and the instructions for their application. Their principal duties, however, will relate to the preparation of preliminary reports and the presentation of the data in the most practical and usable form.

In the training of the supervisors the bureau of the census is endeavoring to take advantage of the intervening time to make certain that each of these officials personally understands the different branches of the census of which he will have charge.

The bureau will be careful that the supervisor understands the work and actually performs some branches of it before next February when the assistants will be appointed. In the meantime, the supervisors will have been required to prepare actual reports on the different census schedules concerning which they will have to instruct their enumerators. The director of the census or some other official of the bureau will have personal contact with every supervisor. All of the enumerators will be required to pass an examination that is designed not only to test their ability to do the work, but to make certain that they understand what is to be done and how it is to be done before they will be appointed.

Many changes have been made in this branch of the work to guarantee a perfect enumeration. For example, the supervisors will be required to announce the population and the total number of farms in each political subdivision as rapidly as the enumerators complete their work and before the vouchers of the enumerators are approved and paid. This will give local associations and the public a chance to check the work of enumeration and avoid the embarrassing situations that arise when the accuracy of the population count is challenged.

It is impossible to make any corrections. Furthermore, it places the responsibility for correct work upon the supervisors, where it properly belongs.

How To Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

Of course, in this very modern age, we all like to think that our methods are better than all that have gone before. We are inclined to look desistively at pictures of ancient methods and implements, and laughingly wonder how people managed to exist in the world before our time.

In the field of beauty culture, the observant person soon learns that fundamentally the methods practiced by our feminine forebears cannot be dismissed with a mere wave of the hand.

If only the Egyptians had been more prolific in their writings, or if they had only left us a key to their hieroglyphics, I am sure we would have more very precious information regarding their secrets of beauty. For the Egyptian woman worshipped beauty, and from the time of her youth, her energy was expended in exacting the greatest amount of loveliness from herself.

Despite the scarcity of records, the Egyptian lady did leave us one inheritance which has been of tremendous value to all women—the Egyptian mask. This mask is one of the most luxurious and popular treatments offered to wealthy New Yorkers today. Of course, modern science has added to its value, but the old fundamentals embodied in the recipe of those ancient Egyptian ladies still persist.

The treatment preceding the application of the mask is a very complete one, including cleansing, stimulating and nourishing with rich nourishing creams. After the surplus creams are finally removed, then the mask, which is a soft clay-like composition, is prepared and applied to the face thickly and evenly with the finger tips, or with a small soft paint brush, care being taken to avoid the eyes and lips.

If the skin is only the mask may remain for one to three hours; if the skin is dry it should be removed after a half hour. The removal is accomplished by the use of a towel which has been dipped in hot water.

The Egyptian mask has remarkable rejuvenating power for the tired, sluggish skin. At the same time, its application is very simple. These two facts may account for its popularity among devotees of beauty culture. At any rate, it makes us wonder whether Cleopatra's international age-old reputation may not be tied up some way in this marvelous beauty aid.

Behind the Scenes In Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—"Stock market prices, like water, are bound to find their real level sooner or later," observed Senator H. McMaster.

The tendency referred to by the South Dakota lawmaker happened to be exemplifying itself rather noticeably in Wall Street at the time, and the senator, looking on interestedly, dropped his remark as a banger's comment on the workings of the forces of financial nature.

There had been no tinkering with the rediscut rate. The Federal Reserve board was quiescent. World conditions were normal.

It simply was an odd day for industrialists—for no especially apparent reason. Nothing sensational—losses of a mere billion or two—not nearly enough to write home about, these times—nervousness painful, for the little fellows.

"It always is painful for a lot of folk," nodded the South Dakotan, sympathetically, "when stock market prices are trying to find their level."

"But there is no use in talking," he continued, "a stock's permanent value depends on the earning power of the concern which it represents an interest in."

"It cannot continue to sell at definitely more for more than the amount on which it will pay adequate dividends."

of the Federal Reserve board, a similar influence is exercised by the present-day compact alignment of our big industries.

"These latter are now in so few hands as to permit a degree of co-operation among them, which once was impossible."

"For their own good, they maintain a certain minimum of employment—maintain it by a kind of tacit joint action to prevent undue commercial depression. With the rising tide of what promises to be a boom, their prices rise, to check dangerous over-expansion; as the tide subsides, their prices also subside, to encourage business activity."

Is it a change of a sort likely to benefit agriculture?

"In a way, perhaps yes," replied the senator.

"Lower industrial prices need not mean lower agriculture prices. The former would be equivalent to an advance in the prices of farm products, even though the latter did not actually advance."

The scalloped ham and potatoes will serve three, so if your company numbers more, figure accordingly.

Today's Recipes
Scalloped Ham and Potatoes—One thick slice boiled ham, one and one-half cups thin white sauce, four cups parboiled diced potatoes, salt and pepper. Cut off a slice of boiled ham about one-half inch thick; fry each side until it begins to brown, then put in baking dish, cover with parboiled potatoes and white sauce. Bake in moderate oven until potatoes are done, about 15 to 20 minutes.

Ginger-Apple Tapioca—Bring three cups of water to the boiling point. Pour into top of a double boiler. Add one-third cup minute tapioca and cook until transparent, stirring often. Add one-third cup sugar, one cup applesauce, one slightly-beaten egg yolk. Cook a few minutes more, cool slightly, and add three tablespoons chopped, preserved ginger and one stiffly beaten egg white. Serve very cold, garnished with whipped cream.

TRY THIS RECIPE BEFORE PEACHES GO OUT
CRISS-CROSS PEACH PIE

(Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe)—One and one-half cups pastry flour, one-fourth teaspoon salt, six tablespoons shortening, six tablespoons ice cold water, two cups peach halves, three-fourths cup sugar, one tablespoon flour, one-fourth cup cream. Line deep pie plate with pastry rolled one-quarter inch thick. Peel peaches, remove stones and cut the peaches in halves. Mix sugar and flour. Put half of mixture in bottom of pastry lined plate. Lay in peach halves, with cut side up. Add remaining sugar. Roll pastry into a rectangular piece and cut into half-inch strips with a pastry jagger. Lay across pie in diamond fashion. Put in hot oven, 450 degrees. Bake at this heat for 10 minutes. Then reduce heat to 325 degrees. Invert a lightweight pie tin over pie. The peaches cook more quickly than if they were left uncovered. Just before taking from the oven put a quart of cream over the peaches. The pie cooks this cream blends with the peach juice making it particularly delicious.

Senator McMaster does not want to be understood as forecasting a business slump, similar to those of pretty regular occurrence, alternating with booms, in pre-war years.

"Regardless of the prospect of a hearing of stock market lambs," he says, "the era of periodic spells of hard times in America is past."

Diet and Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.
Author of "Diet and Health" and "Diet for Children"

INSULIN
Mrs. G.—Insulin is a normal internal secretion of the pancreas, having to do with the chemistry of carbohydrates (sugar and starches) in the body, and the reason the injections of prepared insulin are so helpful in diabetes is that it supplies what the patient's own pancreas is failing to supply. The insulin that is manufactured by pharmaceutical houses is made from certain portions of animal pancreas of cattle and hogs.

Insulin was discovered by Dr. Banting and his associate, of the University of Toronto, in 1921, through work which was carried out on dogs. Dr. Banting received the Nobel prize in medicine for this discovery. It has not claimed to be a cure for diabetes, but through its use patients can have a much more varied diet and in this way the general health is greatly improved.

You know, don't you, that diabetes is extremely common in the overweight? Yes, 90 per cent of the diabetics have been overweight before their pancreas goes on a strike. They get thin enough after they get diabetes!

We have a list of good books on diabetes written by authorities, for the layman. Also a pamphlet on kidney and bladder disorders which gives simple tests for detecting the presence of sugar in the urine. See column rules for obtaining these.

"I've lost 17 pounds so far by following your book, Diet and Health, and enjoyed both studying it and reducing!" In one place you list sugar as two heaping tablespoonfuls to 100 calories, and in the same resume of the caloric values, you have two heaping teaspoonfuls. One of these is wrong; I imagine it is the two heaping tablespoonfuls. Can you give me the caloric value of avocado, bran and a cup of flour?

MISS B.—
Yes, the two heaping tablespoonfuls is wrong, Miss B. This error occurred in a late printing. I noticed it and have sent on a correction to my publisher.

None of the food laboratories have ever included in their list the caloric value of avocados, or the heat of pears (they are rather recently grown in the United States) but from the high percentage fat in them, I would reckon caloric value as 100 calories to two ounces, or four rounding to spoonfuls, of the pulp. Flour, cup, unsifted, weighs 4½ ounce, and is approximately 460 calories. Sifted, it weighs one-half ounce less (4 ounces), so is approximately 60 calories less, or 460.

I'm glad you had such success with the little book and that you enjoy it, Miss B. The same instructions I have in that, we have in condensed form for our newspaper readers. This can be obtained by following column rules.

MISS S.—All scars are inflamed looking for a while, and sometimes it takes many months for the discoloration to subside. If your scar is deforming, perhaps a plastic surgeon could remove it for you and bring the tissues together in such a way that only a slight line would be left. Ring up your county medical society for a list of these surgeons.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

Family teasing is responsible for many inferiority complexes. A little girl who does not want her letter to be published, writes me: "Please won't you tell me how I can make them (the family) stop teasing me and telling me I'm no good, because sometimes I begin to think I AM no good, and I don't want to do that."

Don't believe it, Mary Louise. Just keep your faith in yourself in spite of the teasing. They don't in the least know how it hurts, and, besides, dear, you know that you are the age when you are particularly sensitive. A few years ago, probably, or a few years hence, you would not take the teasing so much to heart.

Your family probably would be heartbroken if they knew how the teasing affects you. It may be, too, that they are afraid of making too much of you, of letting you see that they are fond and proud of you, and so they go to the other extreme.

It's queer how people torture the things they love best, isn't it? Haven't you seen a man tease a dog? He may think a lot of the dog, but he will torment him unmercifully, thinking, apparently, that the dog enjoys it as much as he does. And you'll see the same thing with a baby. Adults will sometimes play with a baby, teasing it until the poor little thing is a nervous and physical wreck.

We have to be tolerant of such people, Mary Louise, although they make us want to scream and rave. They are ignorant. I don't know what you can do about it, dear, unless you show your relatives this article.

Could you let your mother or your father see just how much their remarks hurt you?

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I have known a boy for two years and have gone with him for almost that time, and I believe I have learned to love him. He says he loves me and has spoken of marriage, but not seriously, as I interpret him. My father has told me never to allow a boy to kiss me unless I am sure I love him. Will this boy love his respect for me if I grant him an occasional kiss? Also, can I be justified in breaking the rule of obedience to my father if I do this?

"A friend of mine and her older sister are both in love with the same boy. Is it right for my friend to try to win this boy, after warning her sister of her intentions? He is friendly to both and apparently impartial. Should she allow him to kiss her? Does a girl lose her self-respect in allowing old friends to kiss her in a friendly way? E. S."

If you do love the boy you are not disobeying your father by allowing an occasional kiss, are you? As to the girl friend and her sister, if it is understood between them that there is to be a fair fight with no favors, why, let them go to it.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I have some dark hairs on my face and I should like to know if you know of any hair bleach."

"BOBBIE"
I heard that equal parts of peroxide and ammonia will bleach hairs, Bobbie, and eventually discourage their growth. Don't apply too often, however, as it would be hard on the skin.

PUZZLED: No harm at all in writing to both of the boys if you wish, dear, although it is customary only to write to the one who asks you to write to him. The other one need not answer if he doesn't want to.

WONDERING: Couldn't make it when you asked for an answer, Wondering. You didn't give me enough time. I think the boys like you or he wouldn't act as he does, but he very probably isn't serious as he's too young. Don't you be serious, either.

PROVES NATIONAL LEAGUE CAN WIN; MCCARTHY PICKS ROOT

Athletics, On Other Hand Have Too Many Pitchers To Make Choice Easy; Grove Expected To Get Call With Quinn In Reserve

By DAVIS J. WALSH

International News Service Sports Editor

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 12.—With one of those bland changes of which baseball only could be capable, the 1929 world series had become almost a fresh document between the setting of one sun and the rising of another and today it was destined to conduct its fourth game, not as a formality, but as a grim, deadly necessity. The affair no longer was playing the buffoon. It had become drama again.

This state of affairs was effected merely by the fact that the Chicago Cubs won a ball game yesterday from the Philadelphia Athletics. This didn't prove that the Cubs were a better club than the Athletics, it only established the fact that a National League really was not under obligation to lose every game of every series, until the sun shall rise no more and the moon be gone and are light in limbo. It meant that a contest of some kind was being made by the National League for the first time since 1926.

This was, indeed, important. A lot of people were beginning to think, after ten straight victories by the American League, that the boys were representing the three-league league, with only one of them open.

Anyhow, this fourth game this afternoon figured to be the dark meat item on the bill of particulars. The Cubs, trailing by two victories to one, were ready to pitch Charley Root, the man who had given them a million dollars worth of pitching in the first game and got a quarter of a pound of baloney for his trouble.

The Athletics, perhaps not quite as debonair as of yore but still quietly confident, had a choice of three men, Jack Quinn, Lefty Grove and Rube Walberg, with the comforting assurance that they couldn't go far wrong with any of them.

The game, too, was expected to have more of a crowd background than yesterday's Philadelphia premiere. For the town evidently had assumed that the Cubs were in there only because the rules demanded a minimum of four games.

BENRUS WATCH FIVE TAKES LEADERSHIP IN RECREATION LOOP

The Benrus Watch bowling quintet has replaced the Champion Greene County Lumber Co. as leaders of the Recreation League at the end of the first round of play.

The league leaders have a one-game advantage but two other teams are pressing close behind to make a three-cornered race out of it. The Red Wing Co. in third position, is rapidly assuming the role of the "dark horse" team of the league and is only separated from first place by a two-game margin.

League standing follows:
Team. Won. Lost. Pct.
Benrus Watch 11 4 .733
Gr. Co. L. Co. 9 6 .600
Red Wing Co. 9 6 .600
Buicks 6 9 .400
Lang Chevrolet Co. 5 10 .333
Arch-O-Pedic Shoes 4 11 .267

Charles Malavazos, member of Benrus Watch team, has rolled his way to the head of the bowling averages in the Recreation League with a mark of 186.12 for fifteen games. The ten high average bowlers in the league are:

Player	G.	T.P.	Ave.
Malavazos	15	2,802	186.12

TROY OPENS LEAGUE SEASON BY VICTORY OVER GREENVILLE

Troy High inaugurated its Miami Valley League schedule by scoring a 9 to 6 victory over Greenville on the latter's gridiron Friday afternoon. The Trojan eleven led at the half, 2 to 0 as a result of safety. A long run by Halfback Eyer punched the ball on the ten-yard line and paved the way for the Trojan touchdown in the second half. Rehmet bucked the ball over and Eyer kicked goal. Greenville's touchdown came in the second half as a result of a march down the field, Kelly taking the ball over the final chalk line. The try for extra point was missed.

The game was the first league contest of the season. Originally scheduled for Saturday, it was moved up to Friday in order that members of the Troy squad might attend the Ohio State-Iowa game at Columbus Saturday.

McClain High offered little resistance and Wilmington High gridiron walked off the field with a 19 to 0 victory over the Greenfield eleven Friday at Wilmington. The first Quaker touchdown resulted when Wolfe, center, recovered a Greenville fumble. Hutchins added the extra point. Telfair scored on a forward pass and Hlatt plunged the line for Wilmington's other two scores.

Without High Tigers, of Cincinnati, who meet Xenia Central High at Cox Field next Friday afternoon registered a one-sided victory over Dayton Oakwood by a score of 27 to 0 at Cincinnati Friday. Freddy Ratterman, flashy quarterback for the Tigers, circled the ends consistently for ten, fifteen and twenty yards and was rarely stopped. He scored two touchdowns. Without used second string players most of the game, scoring three touchdowns in the second period and another in the third quarter.

HOME CADETS RALLY IN FINAL QUARTER TO DEFEAT DEGRAFF

Start Scoring March With Count Tied In Friday Win

DISPLAYING its winning punch in the fourth quarter to put over the deciding touchdown in the last three minutes of play, an improved O. S. and S. O. Home football eleven triumphed over DeGraff High gridlers by a margin of 13 to 7 on the DeGraff gridiron Friday afternoon.

Home gridlers started off auspiciously in the first quarter, marking their first touchdown in the first minute and a half of play. Four plays carried the ball from their own forty-yard line for the score and the extra point was also good.

In the second period DeGraff came back strong to register a touchdown, add the extra point and even the count with only one minute remaining to play in the half.

The third quarter was contested on an even basis, neither team being able to gain a decided advantage, but in the fourth the cadets again bit their stride and in the ebbing moments of the game paraded down the field for the winning counter. The march started from mid-field.

Prof. Seall's boys registered a total of twelve first downs as compared with seven for DeGraff and also gained 215 yards from scrimmage against 122 yards for their opponents.

The Home team also experienced success when it took to the air, completing five out of seven attempted forward passes. DeGraff tried five forwards, completing two.

In recording its second straight victory the Home showed marked improvement on offense and was not guilty of a single fumble, but the defense was not up to the usual standard. DeGraff went down fighting and was the scrappiest team the cadets have faced this season.

Captain R. Yowell, halfback, and McKinley, fullback, accounted for most of the ground gaining. Yowell was on the ending end of forward passes and tossed aeriels accurately all over the field, while Reynolds at right and played his best game so far this year. On offense the entire team functioned smoothly. Lineups:

ADVANCE DATE OF XENIA-TROY GAME

Because it conflicts with a two-day meeting of South Central Ohio school teachers at Dayton November 8 and 9, the Miami Valley League football game between Xenia Central and Troy High, originally booked for Saturday, November 9 at Troy, has been moved up to Thursday, November 7 at 2:30. It is disclosed, there will be no school Friday, November 8 because of the teachers' meeting.

TOURISTS TO B. C. VANCOUVER, B. C., Oct. 12.—More than 1,000,000 tourists came to British Columbia this year and spent in the neighborhood of $55,000,000, it is estimated by publicity bureau officials here.

OHIO STATE VETERANS

AROUND these men will be a large portion of Ohio State University's football hopes center this fall.

Undertaking his first season as director of football at Ohio State University, Sam S. Willaman started the 1929 season with Kruskamp, Cory Eby, Young, Raskowski, Surina and several other regulars lost through graduation. However, the above men are veterans with considerable playing experience behind them. Fred Barratt, 239 pound center, proved a tower of strength in the middle of the line, while Wesley Feiler gained All-American honors at end. William Griffith paired at guard with Joe Ujehelyi last season which bolstered the line considerably last season, while Richard Larkins is back at his old tackle post.

In the backfield, Allen Holman returns to take over his task as field general, while Charles Coffee enters his last season of competition as a halfback.

XENIA IMPERIALS WILL PLAY PIQUA KEEFER DRUGS SUNDAY

Imperials, Xenia's semi-pro football team, will invade Piqua Sunday afternoon for the second game of the season with the Keifer Drugs, an independent team with a record of fourteen consecutive victories extending over a period of two years.

"The Poison Dispensers," as they are known, have already played three games this season, winning every one. Last week the Drugs defeated West Carrollton, 12 to 0.

Incidentally, the Piqua eleven has been scored on only once. The Piqua were undefeated last season after playing a tie their opening game.

The lineup of the Imperials is expected to be strengthened in spots for the game. Last Sunday the local eleven lost its opener to Tipp City Merchants, 6 to 0 but is confident of breaking Piqua's long chain of victories Sunday.

The Sunday contest will start at 2:30 o'clock and will be played at Stein Park. Imperials are requested to meet at Geysers at 11 a. m. Sunday.

Here are the probable starting lineups for the two teams:

Imperials	Pos.	Keifer Drugs

MARIETTA DEFEATS OTTERBEIN 6 TO 2

MARIETTA, O., Oct. 12.—Marietta College's gridiron warriors today were off with the right foot forward in the Ohio Conference, having handed Otterbein a 6 to 2 beating in a nip-and-tuck contest on the home field here yesterday.

Both teams scored their only touchdowns in the first quarter and after that the game proved to be a bitter punting contest with neither team gaining the advantage.

Marietta's score occurred when Fullback Parren carried the ball across the final chalk mark after the oval had been brought within scoring distance by a 30-yard run by Weber, left quarterback and a pass from Weber to Northrup, a half.

TOLEDO, O., Oct. 12.—Hearts of football fans in Findlay were heavy today while at the Toledo University campus here, the exhilaration which came with Toledo's 7-to-0 victory over Findlay, was experienced.

It was the first Northwestern Ohio Conference game of the season.

The contest was put in Toledo's icebox in the first quarter when Sharpe, quarterback, skirted an end for an 18-yard run over Findlay's goal marker. The toe of Dunn, acting captain, added the extra point. Findlay was held scoreless. It made a noble attempt to score in the past period, but a bad pass spoiled whatever chances there might have been.

OHIO BOXED APPLES COMMAND PREMIUM
Choice Ohio apples packed in bushel boxes commanded a net premium of 72 cents a bushel over the same grade of apples packed in bushel baskets in experimental carloads prepared and marketed last year by the Chesapeake Orchard Company of Lawrence County, Ohio, in cooperation with the rural economics department of the Ohio Experiment Station and the horticultural extension department of the Ohio State University.

The packing of apples in boxes is customary in the western fruit growing sections but is not practiced in Ohio. The trade has long been accustomed to eastern apples packed in barrels and baskets. The feeling has been that the box container should be reserved for a higher class product which could be offered by the western growers at a special trade at a premium price, says Chas. W. Hauck, assistant in the economics department, in discussing this experiment in marketing.

In the experiment one carload of No. 1 grade Rome Beauty apples was packed in boxes and one in baskets and the costs and returns compared. The total cost per bushel for grading and packing, in paper, etc., and of hauling and cold storage was 74 cents for baskets and 76 cents for boxes.

The fruit was placed in cold storage immediately after packing and was sold out during the winter in small lots to retail dealers and fruit stands, a few lots going to retail stores in the West Virginia coal fields. The wholesale price of the boxes averaged $2.46 per box; of baskets, $1.72, or a net difference of 72 cents per bushel in favor of the boxed apples.

The experiment is being repeated this year. Part of the apples will be sold as before and part will be shipped by rail to one of the large receiving markets, where they will face the competition of boxed apples from the west as well as that of eastern apples in baskets and barrels.

STAMP COLLECTOR MAKES $6,000 SALE

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 12.—Alvin Good, expert Cleveland stamp collector, recently sold 800 one-cent stamps—face value, $8—for $6,000. The stamps, aged bits of square blue paper, were those of the first one-cent stamps printed by the United States Government in 1851. They were purchased by a New York firm, said to be acting as an agent for a private collector.

One stamp in the collection, Good said, was worth $500. He pointed out that to the casual observer these stamps would give the appearance of being merely a picture of the head of Benjamin Franklin, but there are countless differences, detectable only under a powerful magnifying glass, that determine the value of the stamps.

FLAGS DISPLAYED TO HONOR COLUMBUS

Xenia paid tribute Saturday to Christopher Columbus, the man who discovered America 437 years ago.

Observing "Columbus Day" as a legal holiday in honor of the great discoverer, Xenia's three banks, other financial institutions and city offices remained closed all day, while local merchants displayed flags in front of their places of business.

AUTOS COLLIDE

Both cars were slightly damaged but no one was injured when a sedan driven by Miss Maude Voris, 8 Galloway St., collided with another auto driven by a Belmont resident at Main and Detroit Sts. at 7:30 p. m. Friday. Miss Voris, driving east on W. Main St., attempted to make a left turn with the green light onto N. Detroit St. according to witnesses of the accident.

OLD SCHOOL SOLD

The one-room Richland school and grounds, located in Spring Valley Twp., off the New Burlington Pike, four miles south of Xenia, were sold at public auction at the Court House Saturday morning to County Commissioner A. E. Beam for $700. The school was abandoned two years ago when New Burlington and Spring Valley schools were centralized. A three-acre tract of ground on which the brick structure stands was included in the sale.

NEW WATER PROCESS

LORAIN, O., Oct. 12.—A new method of water coagulation which may revolutionize the water purification industry throughout the world has been developed by C. Arthur Brown, Lorain engineer.

During the past nine months Brown has found that iron sulphate can be obtained more cheaply and permits better coagulation and purification of water than the present method of alum mixed with caustic iron.

Brown's process has been successfully tried in large water works plants at Wilmington, Del., and Chickasaw, Ala. Small scale experiments have been carried on here. "Iron sulphate is destined to revolutionize the water purification methods now in use," Brown declares. "When one considers that 40,000,000 persons in the United States daily use filtered water, any practical process that allows a saving is bound to become a universal method."

In recognition of the success of Brown's latest experiment he was recently awarded the Judge E. H. Gary silver medal.

"To be sorry for wrong done is good," said the minister. "But to be sorry and confess it to the wronged one, is to make the sorrow evident, and to remove the cause of failure from our minds."

Chatty thought it over very carefully. She had confessed to Billie—and felt much better, as far as Billie was concerned. Never had she felt so close to her mother, as after she had told that best of friends all the evil that was in her heart and from what ghastly error she had been saved by the accident.

She had felt some self-respect when she told Mr. Van Nuy's she was sorry she had disgraced herself in public.

But there were other wrongs she had not confessed! And something seemed to pursue her as an evil influence, something prevented her getting a job, something was in the way of her complete rehabilitation. Chatty began to think—dimly and with difficulty—because Chatty was not accustomed to thinking clearly of herself—that the fault must lie altogether with her. Not only in what she had done—but in what she was not now doing.

Mightily she wished for Billie, to talk it over. There was her mother, but Chatty shrank from telling her mother more about her troubles; her mother was burdened enough, with ill health, too little money, not enough work, anxiety.

"I have to fight this out for myself!" Chatty determined, sturdily. Gradually there grew up in Chatty's mind the idea of self-sacrifice. She had done many evil things. Reforming herself and not doing them any more, was as good as far as it went.

But it didn't go far enough. If she was really to stand clean and clear before the world, the judgment of which is as harsh as it is, often, unfair, Chatty realized she must make what reparation she could.

It was not enough to tell Billie and her mother of the harm she had done; she must tell those she had harmed!

Chatty shrank from this conclusion as from a blow in the face. To tell Agnes she had stolen her diary? To tell Mr. Van Nuy's she had tried to wreck his home? To tell Mrs. Van Nuy's she had written an anonymous letter? Impossible! She'd die first!

But the idea persisted in her mind. The right idea has a way of persisting, whether we want it to or not.

Chatty was normally, naturally, a decent girl. All that was best in her had fallen a victim to her insatiable curiosity about the affairs of others, her determination to be first to tell, her enjoyment of the sound of her own voice. Somewhere Chatty had read a nonsense verse:

"I love its giddy gurgle;
I love its fervent flow;
I love to wind my mouth up;

One day, utterly weary and completely discouraged, Chatty dropped in an open church at noon.

It was cool and quiet, the edifice was dim and peaceful.

Chatty sat in a rear pew, just resting. Then she noted that others were coming in. Shortly, the tones of the organ stole through the still air.

Chatty was in a church which was holding a midday "comfort" service, a half hour withdrawal from the world.

The little sermon was very short; to Chatty it was very impressive.

The young minister took as his text a verse from the first epistle of John: "If we confess our sins, He is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness."

It was a very simple talk, but straight from the shoulder.

"To be sorry for wrong done is good," said the minister. "But to be sorry and confess it to the wronged one, is to make the sorrow evident, and to remove the cause of failure from our minds."

Chatty thought it over very carefully. She had confessed to Billie—and felt much better, as far as Billie was concerned. CHAPTER LIII

Walk, walk, walk the streets. Ache, ache, ache in the feet—and the heart.

Smile, smile, smile with tears running down inside instead of outside the cheeks. Tears in the heart do not show through a smile.

Rebuff, rudeness, indifference, callousness—these Chatty met on every hand.

No one wanted a store girl. No one wanted a girl to address envelopes. No one, it seemed, wanted a girl for anything that Chatty could do.

To make it much worse, every morning paper seemed filled with "wanted, file clerk, reference required." "Wanted, first-class P. B. X. operator, give references."

Victor McLaglen and Edmund Lowe, who made such a big hit in "What Price Glory?" have made another team-hit in "The Cock-Eyed World," the Fox talkie that is receiving considerable acclaim now. Lowe is deserting the team for one picture, however, and will work for Pathe, playing opposite Constance Bennett in "This Thing Called Love." The story is a smart comedy blending high power drama and puny comedy and will show Lowe in an entirely different role than the parts he has played with McLaglen.

COMPLY WITH CODE

Eight villages in Greene County have not reported to John M. Vorys, state director of aviation, that they have complied with the provision of the new state aviation code which requires that Ohio municipalities and villages provide identification markings for the benefit of aviators.

Director Vorys has solicited the co-operation on the part of chambers of commerce, auto clubs and other civic organizations in the various county seats throughout Ohio in an endeavor to induce municipalities and villages to provide these markings. Vorys said that at least 190 municipalities have informed him the required markings have been made.

Greene County villages which have not yet reported to Vorys include: Bellbrook, Bowersville, Cedarville, Fairfield, Osborn, Jamestown, Spring Valley and Yellow Springs.

PRESSING SEASON FOR APPLES, GRAPES

SANDUSKY, O., Oct. 12.—The pressing season is at its height in the orchard and vineyard section of this widely known apple and grape producing locality. It will continue well into the fall, for at this time only the early crops are in the handling.

Both the apple and grape yields are small this harvest as compared with those of other years. The result is a lessened production of cider and grape juice, which is being reflected in slightly increased prices.

There was never any great quantity of cider pressed in the so-called Sandusky area, but "wine"—that's another matter.

While the day of prohibition grape-growing and wine-making was the chief industry of Sandusky and environments, including the Lake Erie islands to the northeast.

Today the word "wine" is taboo among the grape men, and, as a result, the old-timer has a hard battle to conform with present requirements.

FARM NOT WORTH TRADE IS CLAIMED

HAMILTON, O., Oct. 12.—There is a farm of eighty-four acres in Hocking County on which is a house without roof, windows and doors. The soil is not tillable, being almost mountainous. Roads to that place are such that travel by auto is impossible.

This is a description of the farm given in a suit on file here by which Charles and Sarah Miller seek to cancel a pretended deal by which they were to give in exchange property in New Miami worth $1,500. They charge misrepresentation by James D. Hutchinson and others who said, it is alleged, that farm was only ten miles from Chillicothe whereas it is twenty-five miles by air and fifty miles by road.

Arraigned in Common Pleas Court Friday on an indictment for burglary and larceny in connection with the alleged theft of five chickens valued at $5 from a barn on the farm of Omer Sturgeon last June 22, Owen Clemans entered a not guilty plea. NOTES

The first luncheon of the seniors was held at noon Wednesday, October 2. These luncheons are going to be held the first Wednesday of each month for the remainder of the year. Members of the senior class are eligible to attend. Two tables decorated in proper autumn colors were set for the occasion. Before being seated the school song was sung. For the sum of thirty-five cents a meal consisting of veal birds, scalloped potatoes, dressing, vegetable salad, rolls, ice cream and cake, was served. A radio program was given after the luncheon. The bell for classes sounded shortly and everyone left with the idea of trying to move the first Wednesday up the next time.

Miss Olive Allen has returned to Central High after an illness of four or five days. Miss Allen was at her home in Waynesville during her illness.

Miss Helen Miller taught in Miss Allen's place during her absence. During the past few days two senior girls have been excused from their afternoon classes by Mr. Woodruff to go to Spring Hill School to help care for the large classes of first and second grade pupils.

The girls that are having a chance at practice teaching at present

Roberta Ralls, a member of the senior class has returned to school after having been confined at her home with a nervous breakdown. Her condition was thought serious for a while.

Central students seem to have their hard luck troubles this year. There has been quite a few football casualties and automobile accidents and what not. The latest victims are Burton Baker and Charles Montgomery. A Ford coupe driven by Baker overturned at a corner near the fair grounds injuring Montgomery to the extent of a cut about the head and a broken arm. Baker as well as two other boys escaped injury.

A pencil machine has been placed in the principal's office whereby students may drop a nickel in and receive a pencil. The pencils have the complete 1929 football schedule printed on them.

The senior and junior classes have been extended an invitation to visit Oberlin College, Saturday, October 26.

Quite a program has been arranged for the day including a tour of the campus, visit to classes, prize scholarship examinations, special luncheon, football game, special showing of Oberlin movies and a college dance. This is a program that sounds inviting to every one.

Twenty prize scholarships of the value of $300 each, are to be awarded on the basis of competitive examinations to be held on that day at the college.

Plans are being made for a very fine year in basketball in the jun-

school or have dropped out of school. Coach Patterson has some promising youths to look forward to and should come forth with a fighting team. Among the most promising are Luttrell, Adair, Hook and Dawson from last year's reserve squad and Batson, Dudley, Weingart, Bath, Brown, Latimer, McElree, Fawcett, Yeakley, Stiles and others who graduated from the grades last year.

Several Dayton junior high teams have been approached in an effort to open up athletic relations with the Central Juniors, Fairview, Oakwood, Westwood and Belmont are among those approached. Coach Patterson does not expect to issue his initial call for candidates until about the last of November.

The Chevrolet Red, "O. K. That Counts" Tag Protects Your Used Car Purchase

Used car buyers in this community have learned that they can have perfect confidence in any used car that has attached to its radiator cap the Chevrolet red "O. K. that Counts" tag.

Under the terms of Chevrolet's used car policy, originated to protect the used car buyer, every reconditioned car we offer for sale is identified by means of this red tag attached to the radiator cap. This tag is the purchaser's assurance that the car to which it is attached has been gone over carefully by expert mechanics—that it has been thoroughly reconditioned—and that the price is based on the car's actual ability to render service.

Due to the great popularity of the new Chevrolet Six in this community, we have on hand at this time an unusually large group of these "O. K.'d" cars. If you are in the market for a dependable used car—come in. You are certain to find the car you want—at a price that will positively save you money. EX-CONVICT KILLS WOMAN

Dead Man Believed To Be "Overall Bandit" There

CLEVELAND, Oct. 12.—Cornered in an upstairs room of a house on Lorain Avenue here by police who sought him in connection with the murder late yesterday of Mrs. Harriett Steinbrenner, 33, young Lakewood matron, Walter Chaney, 36, ex-Ohio penitentiary convict committed suicide today, according to police.

Mrs. Steinbrenner was fatally wounded three times late yesterday while she was attending a tea and bridge party in a Clifton Boulevard apartment.

Chaney, until a week ago, had roomed at the Steinbrenner home. It was he, Mrs. Irene Mount, hostess at the bridge party told police, who called at her apartment and asked to speak to Mrs. Steinbrenner. Mrs. Mount said that a few minutes after her guest joined the man, she heard angry conversation from the hallway and then suddenly, a despairing scream: "Don't shoot, Walter. Don't shoot." An instant later three bullet shots rang out. Mrs. Steinbrenner's body was found lying in the hallway.

Chaney, according to police, is believed to have been the notorious "overall bandit" who has been terrorizing tea rooms and hotels during past weeks. Mrs. Steinbrenner's automobile, which she had reported stolen last Thursday, was parked in front of the apartment. Chaney, it was said, had often borrowed it. On the edge of the automobile seat lay a pair of blue overalls, similar to those worn by the robber who recently held up Lakewood's fashionable Lake Shore Hotel. Mrs. Steinbrenner, until two days ago had been cashier in the hotel. Police are working on the theory that the slain woman may have suspected Chaney as the robber and that he killed her, fearing she might tip him off as the hold-up man.

CAPITAL GIN PARTY RESULTS IN MURDER

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—A wild party and gin causing the killing of one of four merry-makers early today. William Douglas, 40, boiler maker at the navy yard, was shot three times by Patrolman B. F. Howze.

The officer said he intruded on the party because of the noise and was attacked by Douglas and Thomas E. Smoot, Baltimore, Va., his male companion. Howze said he fired three shots when Douglas had him on the floor beating him with his own nightstick.

The two hostesses who cringed in a back room during the brawl were held as witnesses. They are Mrs. May V. Campbell, 23 and Miss Margaret E. Frye, 23, both telephone operators.

PILOT KILLED AND STUDENT INJURED

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 12.—A flying instructor is dead here today and a student aviator is in a hospital suffering from injuries which will probably prove fatal as the result of an airplane crash, near here yesterday.

Leonard Wheeler, formerly of Indianapolis, is the dead man, and Ford Burke, a youth, will die, doctors declared.

Wheeler was piloting a dual control biplane when it went into a spin at a height of about 2,400 feet and crashed into a field. The plane did not catch fire.

CALL 111

GIRL WRITER CHOKED TO DEATH

Miss Marjorie O'Donnell, 24, left, formerly of Oil City, Pa., a writer of articles, was found strangled to death in a fashionable Washington, D. C., hotel after Dexter Churchill Dayton, 25, right, told a belloy: "I've just killed my sweetheart; you'd better call the police." Dayton, who says he came from Kansas City, Mo., told police, they say, that after choking the girl he had intended to commit suicide, but fell asleep in a drunken stupor and awakened twelve hours later to find the dead girl in his arms.

GRAF ZEPPELIN CREW REBELS AGAINST FLIGHT TO NORTH POLE

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, Oct. 12.—In order to carry out the projected plans for a dirigible flight to the North Pole in the Graf Zeppelin, Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the airship, may be called in today by officials of the Zeppelin company to induce the crew to make the journey.

The polar flight was to have been commanded by Dr. Fridtjof Nansen famous explorer, and was scheduled to cover about 17,000 miles. Although declining to give their reason, the crew unanimously decided not to make the voyage. It is understood that financial considerations may be involved.

Dr. Eckener decided some time ago he would not participate in the expedition because of the state of his health.

THIEF ROBS GORDON BROS. GARAGE HERE SATURDAY MORNING

Forces Entrance To Steal $27 From Cash Register

Taking advantage of the fact the only employee on duty had been summoned away from the garage to deliver five gallons of gas to the Wilmington Pike with an empty gasoline tank, a thief broke into the office at the Gordon Bros. garage, 39 E. Second St., at 6 a. m. Saturday and robbed the cash register of $27.

The intruder took only paper money and ignored $9.60 in change which the register also contained.

The employee, Milous Keith, colored, was only gone for about fifteen minutes. Upon his return he discovered the pane of glass in the office door had been cut neatly with a glass cutter, enabling the thief to reach inside and open the door, which Keith had taken the precaution to lock before leaving on his errand.

Police who investigated the robbery, learned that in Keith's absence a man was seen to drive up to the garage in a coupe and enter.

Authorities suspect that the robbery had been prearranged and that the occurrence of the theft in the fifteen-minute absence of the only man on duty was no mere coincidence.

Keith told police that he took no particular notice of the man who had entered the garage and asked him to deliver five gallons of gasoline to the place on the Wilmington Pike where his auto was stranded and therefore could not describe him accurately. He declared, however, that the gas tank was actually empty.

TWO GUNMEN SLAIN IN STORE HOLD-UP

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 12.—A youthful suspect was arrested here today in connection with the Longfellow pharmacy holdup here late last night in which two of a trio of gunmen were slain by Patrolman Harry W. Soerter as they attempted to rob the store.

The two slain robbers were identified by police as Arthur Cincinelli of East Cleveland, and Mike Genepo of Cleveland. The third of the bandit gang was acting as a "look-out" for his confederates. He escaped. He is believed to be the suspect who was arrested this morning.

Patrolman Soerter, who had been detailed to the pharmacy at the request of its proprietor since January 13, shot down the two gunmen from a hiding place in the drug store when they attempted to "stick up" the place. The store, in less than a year previous to January 13, had been held up four times.

CHINA THROWN INTO FURTHER MUDDLE BY WAR DECLARATION

Nationalists Will Defend Hankow From Feng

OVERCOME EIGHT RUN ADVANTAGE BY HUGE ATTACK IN SEVENTH

SHIBE PARK, Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 12.—A barrage of ten solid base hits, including two home runs, a double and seven singles in the last half of the "lucky seventh" inning, produced ten runs and enabled the Athletics to overcome an eight-run lead and defeat the Cubs, 10 to 8 in the fourth of the world series today.

Held to three hits by Charely Root, Chicago ace, and blanked for six innings, the Macken knocked Root out of the box in the seventh and also hit Nehf, Blake and Malone, his successors, hard. Then Grove went in to pitch for Philadelphia, and held the Cubs hitless and runless in the eighth and ninth, striking out four of the six batters who faced him.

Chicago got off to a two-run lead in the fourth when Captain Grimm hit one of Quinn's balls for a homer with one on. Five more runs were added in the sixth and another in the seventh. Then Root weakened and the eight-run lead withered away.

Sixteen Philadelphia batsmen stepped to the plate in the seventh. Simmons and Haas hit homers in this hectic round.

FIRST INNING

Chicago—McMillan walked on a grounder, Bishop to Fox. English sent a foul fly to Miller. Hornsby struck out, the seventh time he has fanned. Wilson singled to right, McMillan stopping at second. Root to be outdone by Hornsby, Cuyler also struck out for the seventh time in the series. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Philadelphia—On the first pitched ball Bishop flied to Stephenson. McMillan came in for Haas' lunt toward third and tossed him out. Cochrane popped to English. No runs, no hits, no errors.

SECOND INNING

Chicago—Stephenson out on a grounder, Bishop to Fox. Cochrane took Grimm's difficult foul fly close to the Cub dugout. Taylor out, Bishop to Fox. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Philadelphia—Simmons fanned. English made a nice play on Fox's hard grounder but threw badly to Grimm, who was pulled off the bag but touched Fox coming down. McMillan made a pretty stop of Miller's bounder and threw him out. No runs, no hits, no errors.

THIRD INNING

Chicago—Joe Boley dashed over back of second, scooped up Root's apparent safe hit and tossed him out. McMillan raised an infield fly to Fox. English walked. Hornsby out, Boley to Fox. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Philadelphia—Bishop out on a right field and reached second when Cuyler let the ball slip through his legs. Boley bunted to Grimm, who retired him unassisted. Dykes taking third. Quinn struck out. Bishop drove a grounder to Grimm, who touched first. No runs, one hit, one error.

FOURTH INNING

Chicago—Miller went back almost to the right field fence for Wilson's long fly. Cuyler propelled a hit over first and raced to third when Miller allowed the ball to get away. Stephenson popped to Boley. Cuyler holding third. Grimm's long blow cleared the right field fence for a home run. Cuyler scoring ahead of him. Taylor out, Boley to Fox. Two runs, two hits, one error.

Philadelphia—Haas' high fly in front of the plate was taken by Taylor. Stephenson overran Cochrane's single to left and it went for a two-bagger. McMillan scooped up Simmons' hard grounder, chased Cochrane toward second, tossed to Boley and Cochrane was out. Fox drove a long liner to Wilson. No runs, one hit, no errors.

FIFTH INNING

Chicago—Root went out on a grounder, Dykes to Fox. McMillan out, Boley to Fox. English lined to Bishop. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Philadelphia—Miller was credited with a hit when his hard grounder was blocked down by Root, who could not make a play on the batter. Wilson first misjudged Dykes' high fly in the sun then dropped the ball. Miller advancing to second. On a near wild pitch Dykes attempted to steal third and was thrown out. Taylor to McMillan made a sensational running catch of Boley's long drive, robbing him of at least a triple and atoning for his error. Quinn fanned. No runs, one hit, one error.

SIXTH INNING

Chicago—Quinn ducked just in the nick of time as Hornsby singled through the box. Wilson singled past first, sending Hornsby to second. A single by Cuyler to right field scored Hornsby and put Wilson on third. Stephenson's drive to Bishop was too hot to handle and Wilson scored while Cuyler took second. It was scored a hit. Walberg replaced Quinn in the box for the Athletics. Grimm bunted to Walberg, who tossed the ball into right field. Before the ball could be returned Cuyler scored from second and Stephenson from first. The Grimm went to third. Taylor flied to Haas, who made a fine throw to the plate but Grimm slid in safely on a close play. Root struck out. McMillan also fanned. Five runs, four hits, one error.

SEVENTH INNING

Chicago—Rommel is now pitching for the Athletics. English hoisted to Haas. Hornsby stretched a long drive to deep center into a triple. Wilson walked. Cuyler's third successive hit, a single past third, scored Hornsby and put Wilson on second. Stephenson hit to a double play. Dykes to Bishop to Fox. One run, two hits, no errors.

Philadelphia—Al Simmons hit a home run into the left field stands, the ball landing on the top-most tier. Fox singled to right. Miller's "Texas Leaguer" fly to center fell in front of Wilson for a single. Fox taking second. Dykes also singled, scoring Fox and sending Miller to second. Miller scored and Dykes went to third on Boley's single to center. George Burleson batted for Rommel, popped to English. Bishop singled over second, scoring Dykes and putting Boley in the box. Nehf went in to pitch for Chicago. Wilson misjudged Haas' long fly to center, the ball went over his head and Haas rounded the bases for a home run, driving in Boley and Bishop ahead of him. Blake is now pitching for the Cubs. Cochrane walked. Simmons up for the second time in the inning. He bunched a single over McMillan's head. Cochrane taking second. Fox hit safely over second, scoring Cochrane with the tying run while Simmons took third. Malone is now pitching for Chicago. Miller was hit on the leg by the first pitched ball and took first, filling the bases. Dykes doubled to left, scoring Fox and Simmons while Miller took third. Boley struck out for the second time. Burns, pinch-hitting for the second time in this inning, also fanned. Ten runs, ten hits, no errors.

EIGHTH INNING

Chicago—Grimm out, Boley to Fox. Taylor struck out. Hartnett batted for Malone, also fanned. No runs, no hits, no errors.

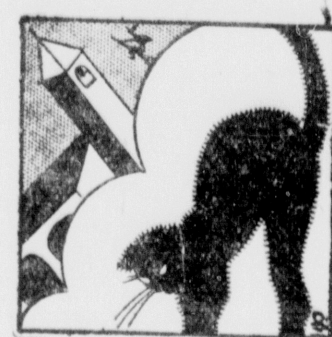

Philadelphia—Carlson is sent in to pitch for the Cubs. Bishops' short fly to left fell safe for a single. Haas bunted in front of the plate and was out. Carlson to Grimm, Bishop taking second on the sacrifice. Cochrane singled to left and Stephenson's accurate relay nipped Bishop at the plate. The batter took second on the throw. In Simmons fanned. No runs, two hits, no errors.

NINTH INNING

Chicago—McMillan struck out the third Cub in a row to fan. English also fanned. Hornsby flied to Miller. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Particularly costumed will bring in separate pages of a giant hymnal, which will thus be constructed before the eyes of the worshippers. The Session of the church will have a representative who will stress the "spiritual" department of the Hymnal, the board of deacons will refer to the stewardship department, the Ladies Aid to the church, the missionary societies to the mission hymns, "Grace notes" for the background for the decorations, the notes filling the air in the auditorium.

Short background sketches have been prepared so that several hymns and hymn tune stories will be given during the course of the service. A large attendance is expected and the uniformed pages will take a special offering to finance the new Sunday School Hymnals, with hopes that the collection will reach from $90 to $100. The public is invited to the service.

NEW BOOKS AT LIBRARY

NOVELS

Ertz—"Galaxy"

The story of one woman's life, from her birth in 1862 to her death in London after the war. The galaxy of scenes, events and characters that make up the story of Laura's life is spread against a background of change from the middle of the nineteenth century to the present.

Benfield—"Little Clown Lost"

A romance in which the same trend as that in the "Chicken-wagon family" is seen. Whimsical and sentimental, the story is quite charmingly told. There is a distinct popular appeal in the little clown who loves so well and sacrifices so much.

Kay-Smith—"Village Doctor"

Dr. Philip Green, seeking to restore his failing health, comes to a tiny Sussex village. Induced by his loneliness he marries the daughter of a prosperous farmer, who, to satisfy her ambition deserts her village sweetheart to marry Philip. In this quiet novel is told the story of a devoted doctor whose simple goodness, won the hearts of his patients, and finally softened the hard heart of his wife. The New York Times says of the "Village Doctor" "Miss Kay-Smith's hand seems to have slowed up a bit, but the style is still calm and idealic and the characterization of the doctor stands out as a mellow bit of portraiture."

Tupper—"The River"

The story tells of the love of Alen John, a young construction engineer, for Rosalee, a girl of the camps. The sound of the river runs through the book, which is well written, but somewhat vague.

Moon—"Dark Star"

Because Nancy was an illegitimate child, everyone in the little Scotch village where she lived expected her to go wrong. But, throughout her young life Nancy lives up to the ideal of the good blood she believes is in her veins. When, in the end, the love she has given is thrust back upon her, she dies as she fancies one of her heritage should. The Nation says, "Miss Moon has written a distinguished and absorbing book. There is subtle music in the prose and a penetrating comprehension of human weakness which will make the story of Nancy linger long in the memory."

DAMAGE CASE GOES INTO FIFTH DAY

The fifth day of the jury trial of the $10,000 damage suit of Mrs. Opal Bowes, Osborn, against the C. C. and St. Louis Railway Co., began in Common Pleas Court Saturday. TO LEGAT TABLE TO HONOR VETS

A bronze tablet bearing the legend: "Honor to the seventy-fourth Ohio Veteran Volunteer Infantry, 1861-1865," will be placed opposite the war savings store at the Main St. entrance of the Court House, honoring the veterans of the seventy-fourth infantry who recently held their annual reunion in Post Hall.

The tablet is being made at the Antioch Bronze Foundry at Yellow Springs, and is being presented as a memorial to the veterans by friends and relatives of the members of the infantry. Any friends or relative of any member of the infantry who wishes to contribute to the tablet fund may notify Mrs. Frank Bickett, secretary.

The tablet is rectangular in shape, with an acorn, the emblem of the corps, in each corner and a border of oak leaves and acorns.

FINED ON CHARGE

A fine of $125 and costs, aggregating $128.50 was imposed upon Harvey Fox, 40, Xenia, when arraigned before Mayor C. Q. Hildebrandt at Wilmington Thursday on a charge of possessing liquor. Fox is said to have been in possession of a memorandum book which contained the names of several Wilmington residents whom he claimed owed him money for liquor.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

WHAT FIRE DOES

The devastating effect of fire on American industry is but little known or understood. No doubt the following figures will be illuminating to many business men.

In a survey recently made of a hundred plants that had been destroyed by fire, it was found that forty-three did not resume operations, fourteen suffered reductions in credit rating, seventeen failed to issue a financial statement and twenty-six lost business. The necessity for curtailing such sweeping losses appears urgent.

The problem of reducing fire waste in industry may be attacked from the standpoint of building and engineering. Those interested will receive aid if they apply to one of the inspection bureaus maintained by the stock fire insurance companies for the building and engineering regulations of The National Board of Fire Underwriters.

In a general way building can be improved by a greater use of incombustible materials and the elimination of large open areas. Fires spread with utmost rapidity when unhindered by dividing walls of any kind and when burnable products are stored in large quantities. In smaller areas, formed by fireproof partitions or walls, and metal doors, flames cannot gain such momentum. Hazardous processes, particularly, should be cut off by strong fire walls or, better still, housed in separate buildings.

From the engineering standpoint, most industries have fire hazards peculiar to their own processes and their fire prevention problems require separate analysis by a qualified engineer. Such a study will reveal which methods of operation and maintenance will be most effective in eliminating fire dangers. That time so spent would be well worth while appears evident from the loss statistics quoted.

A hard-boiled, blasé attitude indicates that the person who has succeeded to it has shut his eyes and ears to opportunities to see, hear and learn.

Wouldn't it be a good thing for the senate to abolish the position of chaplain and devote the money saved to paying an official alienist?

Autumn might not be so melancholy if it did not coincide with so many primary and secondary elections.

NEW YORK—It took Milano, the little colored boy, 30 years to amass a fortune of $43,000 shining shoes and cleaning hats. Then he bade adieu forever to back-breaking toil and after spending a month trying to get his hands clean, had Moe Levy make him a silk-lined suit and went down to Florida, where a gentleman with a sercruker suit and a glad, effulgent smile staged a $42,000 demonstration for him of how Grand took Richmond.

He's back now at the old stand, with an added line of care in his Socratic phiz, trying to kid himself into believing that money isn't everything in life.

A bootlegger's boy came upon a little colored boy playing ball in the street. "Toss it to me," urged the bootlegger's boy. The colored boy threw the ball, the Wop cocked it and walked off. A PONY PASSES ON

For five years in sun and rain and windy weather, Mr. Antonio, the itinerant tin-type man, and Marcel, his spotted pony, traveled the labyrinthine of Tenebrous Town where countless grimy youngsters had come to regard their appearance, twice a year, as inevitable as spring-time or autumn.

The geraniums budded and bloomed on the tenebrous sills last April; but the pony failed to appear. Summer dragged its hot and dusty length; school re-opened, and to and behold, a day or two ago, the old fellow lumbering round the corner but Mr. Antonio with Marcel; but Marcel was perched on a platform atop a diminutive wagon drawn by a tired old mare. The taxidermist had done his best by the spotted horse.

Women, of course, are better judges of men than men themselves. One listens with interest and respect when the Women's Business and Professional Club of an Oklahoma City votes a silver loving cup to the "model husband." The model is described as a man "who never drinks more than enough, swears only in the presence of ladies, drives a new flivver, uses tobacco in every form, plays a moderate game of golf, and fills in at bridge only when forced to."

THE GAY DUTCH

Speaking of styles, there is nothing new in the bright colored or sun-tan stockings now so popular on the avenue. Intimate history tells us that a few hundred years ago when New York was a colony of Holland, Dutch women wore yellow, green, blue, scarlet, brown or white stockings. Much that passes for new is revival. Much that passes for progress is merely change.

SALES RESISTANCE

Some men are considered "hard-boiled" prospects because they have so much sales resistance. If you naturally have a fair amount of sales resistance, be glad. You need it to keep on the road and not get to wondering in the swamp. The power of salesmanship is a dangerous thing. It will sell you if you don't watch out. Perhaps it should get you, but be sure that your gain and uncalculated judgment tells you the proposition is a sound one. Although we may not be absolutely sure we are right we ought to have the courage to follow our best thought and our most careful judgment.

The employment of specialists in certain outstanding phases of the coming census such as distribution, unemployment, agriculture, occupations and manufactures and the intensive training of the force of 573 supervisors who will supervise the activities of approximately 100,000 enumerators at this time in the preliminary work of organizing for the decennial census of 1930.

The specialists will be recognized authorities in their respective fields and they will cooperate with the regular census force in deciding upon the questionnaire and the instructions for their application. Their principal duties, however, will relate to the preparation of the final reports and the presentation of the data in the most practical and usable form.

In the training of the supervisors the bureau of the census is endeavoring to take advantage of the increasing time to make certain that each of these officials personally understands the different branches of the census of which he will have charge.

The bureau will be careful that the supervisor understands the work and actually performs some branches of it before next February when the assistants will be appointed. In the meantime, the supervisors will have been required to prepare actual reports on the different census schedules concerning which they will have to instruct their enumerators. The director of the census or some other official of the bureau will have personal contact with every supervisor.

All of the enumerators will be required to pass an examination that is designed not only to test their ability to do the work, but to make certain that they understand what is to be done and how it is to be done before they will be appointed. Some changes have been made in this branch of the work to guarantee a perfect enumeration. For example, the supervisors will be required to announce the population and the total number of farms in each political subdivision as rapidly as the enumerators complete their work and before the vouchers of the enumerators are approved and paid. This will give local associations and the public a chance to check the work of enumeration and avoid the embarrassing situations that arise when the accuracy of the population count is challenged so long after the enumeration that it is impossible to make any corrections. Furthermore, it places the responsibility for correct work upon the supervisors, where it properly belongs.

THE USE THAT "MAC" BUILT

How To Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

Of course, in this very modern age, we all like to think that our methods are better than all that have gone before. We are inclined to look derisively at pictures of ancient methods and implements, and laughingly wonder how people managed to exist in the world before our time.

In the field of beauty culture, the observant person soon learns that fundamentally the methods practiced by our feminine forebears cannot be dismissed with a mere wave of the hand. If only the Egyptians had been more prolific in their writings, or if they had only left us a key to their hieroglyphics, I am sure we would have more very precious information regarding their secrets of beauty. For the Egyptian woman worshiped youth, and from the time of her youth, her energy was expended in exacting the greatest amount of loveliness from herself.

Despite the scarcity of records, the Egyptian lady did leave us one inheritance which has been of tremendous value to all women—the Egyptian mask. This mask is one of the most luxurious and popular treatments offered to wealthy New Yorkers today. Of course, modern science has added to its value, but the old fundamentals embodied in the recipe of those ancient Egyptian ladies still persist.

The treatment preceding the application of the mask is a very complete one, including cleansing, stimulating and nourishing with rich nourishing creams. After the surplus creams are finally removed, then the mask, which is a soft clay-like composition, is prepared and applied to the face thickly and evenly with the finger tips, or with a small soft paint brush, care being taken to avoid the eyes and lips.

If the skin is only the mask may remain from one to three hours; if the skin is dry it should be removed after a half hour. The removal is accomplished by the use of a towel which has been dipped in hot water. The Egyptian mask has remarkable rejuvenating power for the tired, sluggish skin. At the same time, its application is very simple. These two facts may account for its popularity among devotees of beauty culture. At any rate, it makes us wonder whether Cleopatra's international age-old reputation may not be tied up some way in this marvelous beauty aid.

There had been no tinkering with the rediscut rate. The Federal Reserve board was quiescent. World conditions were normal. It simply was an off day for industrialists—for no especially apparent reason. Nothing sensational—losses of a mere billion or two—nearly enough to write home about, these times—nevertheless painful, for the little fellows.

"It always is painful for a lot of folk," nodded the South Dakotan, sympathetically, "when stock market prices are trying to find their level. "But there is no use in talking," he continued, "a stock's permanent value depends on the earning power of the concern which it represents an interest in. "It cannot continue to sell at definitely for more than the amount on which it will pay adequate dividends. "Now the public, in making a large share of its stock purchases of late, evidently has based its calculations upon industrial profits which it is unsafe to predict, if at all, for some years to come—at least four or five years. Folk who cannot afford to wait that long inevitably will suffer in the meantime."

"Not to discuss any stocks in particular—for of course there are exceptional issues—but speaking of stocks in general," went on the banker-legislator, "there is no question that recent extraordinary market prices have represented an enthusiastic public's anticipations; not the mature judgment of experienced, discreet investors. "It is equally evident that the public has looked perilously far into the future. "In addition to the fact that an interval must elapse before our industries can expand to the extent which has been discounted in advance, even the expected expansion is more or less uncertain."

"For one thing," suggested the senator, "the trend among American manufacturers toward the establishment of factories abroad, to meet the overseas demand for their products, is a development to be taken into account. "By enabling them to eliminate transportation cost, avail themselves of cheaper labor and avoid import taxation, obviously this system places them in a position to compete to better advantage for foreign trade. It is natural and legitimate enough for them to make the most of it. Nevertheless it reduces the possibilities for the growth of such industries here at home. "Some 200 instances of this policy's adoption were revealed in the course of senate discussion lately, and the number is sure to increase steadily—not mere foreign subsidiaries of home concerns, but independent plants."

Senator McMaster does not want to be understood as forecasting a business slump, similar to those of a pretty regular occurrence, alternating with booms in the pre-war years. "Regardless of the prospect of a shearing of stock market lambs," he says, "the era of periodic spells of hard times in America is past."

Despite the stabilizing influence of the Federal Reserve board, a similar influence is exercised by the present-day compact alignment of our big industries. "These latter are now in so few hands as to permit a degree of co-operation among them, which once was impossible. "For their own good, they maintain a certain minimum of employment—maintain it by a kind of tacit joint action to prevent undue commercial depression. With the rising tide of what promises to become a boom, their prices rise, to check dangerous over-expansion; as the tide subsides, their prices also subside, to encourage business activity."

It is a change of a sort likely to benefit agriculture? "In a way, perhaps yes," replied the senator. "Lower industrial prices need not mean lower agriculture prices. The former would be equivalent to an advance in the prices of farm products, even though the latter did not actually advance."

The scalloped ham and potatoes will serve three, so if your company numbers more, figure accordingly.

Today's Recipes

Scalloped Ham and Potatoes—One thick slice boiled ham, one and one-half cups thin white sauce, four cups parboiled diced potatoes, salt and pepper. Cut off a slice of boiled ham about one-half inch thick; fry each side until it begins to brown, then put in baking dish, cover with parboiled potatoes and white sauce. Bake in moderate oven until potatoes are done, about 15 to 20 minutes.

Ginger-Apple Tapioca—Bring three cups of water to the boiling point. Pour into top of a double boiler. Add one-third cup minute tapioca and cook until transparent, stirring often. Add one-third cup sugar, one cup applesauce, one slightly-beaten egg yolk. Cook a few minutes more, cool slightly, and add three tablespoons chopped, preserved ginger and one stiffly beaten egg white. Serve very cold, garnished with whipped cream.

CRISS-CROSS PEACH PIE

(Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe)—One and one-half cups pastry flour, one-fourth teaspoon salt, six tablespoons shortening, six tablespoons ice cold water, two cups peach halves, three-fourths cup sugar, one tablespoon flour, one-fourth cup cream. Line deep pie plate with pastry rolled one-quarter inch thick. Peel peaches, remove stones and cut the peaches in halves. Mix sugar and flour. Put half of mixture in bottom of pastry lined plate. Lay in peach halves, with cut side up. Add remaining sugar. Roll pastry into a rectangular piece and cut into half-inch strips with a pastry jagger. Lay across pie in diamond fashion. Put in hot oven, 450 degrees. Bake at this heat for 10 minutes. Then reduce heat to 325 degrees. Invert a lightweight pie tin over pie. The peaches cook more quickly than if they were left uncovered. Just before taking from the oven put a quart of cream over the peaches. The pie cooks this cream blend with the peach juice making it particularly delicious.

Diet and Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.
Author of "Diet and Health" and "Diet for Children"

INSULIN

Mrs. G.—Insulin is a normal internal secretion of the pancreas, having to do with the chemistry of carbohydrates (sugar and starches) in the body, and the reason the injections of prepared insulin are so helpful in diabetes is that it supplies what the patient's own pancreas is failing to supply. The insulin that is manufactured by pharmaceutical houses is made from certain portions of animal pancreas of cattle and hogs.

Insulin was discovered by Dr. Banting and his associate, of the University of Toronto, in 1921, through work which was carried out on dogs. Dr. Banting received the Nobel prize in medicine for this discovery. It has not claimed to be a cure for diabetes, but through its use patients can have a much more varied diet and in this way the general health is greatly improved.

You know, don't you, that diabetes is extremely common in the overweight? Yes, 90 per cent of the diabetics have been overweight before their pancreas goes on a strike. They get thin enough after they get diabetes!

We have a list of good books on diabetes written by authorities, for the layman. Also a pamphlet on kidney and bladder disorders which gives simple tests for detecting the presence of sugar in the urine. See column rules for obtaining these.

"I've lost 17 pounds so far by following your book, Diet and Health, and enjoyed both studying it and reducing!" In one place you list sugar as two heaping tablespoons to 100 calories, and in the same resume of the caloric values, you have two heaping teaspoonsful. One of these is wrong; I imagine it is the two heaping tablespoonsful. Can you give me the caloric value of avocado, bran and a cup of flour?

Yes, the two heaping tablespoonsful is wrong, Miss B. This error occurred in a late printing. I noticed it and have sent on a correction to my publisher.

None of the food laboratorians have ever included in their list the caloric value of avocados, or the caloric value (they are rather recently grown in the United States) but from the high percentage of fat in them, I would reckon a caloric value as 100 calories to two ounces, or four rounding teaspoonsful, of the pulp. Flour, cup, unsifted, weighs 4½ ounces and is approximately 460 calories. Sifted, it weighs one-half ounce less (4 ounces), so is approximately 60 calories less, or 400.

I'm glad you had such success with the little book and that you enjoy it, Miss B. The same instructions I have in that, we have in condensed form for our newspaper readers. This can be obtained by following column rules.

Miss S.—All scars are inflamed looking for a while, and sometimes it takes many months for the discoloration to subside. If your scar is deforming, perhaps a plastic surgeon could remove it for you and bring the tissues together in such a way that only a slight line would be left. Ring up your county medical society for a list of these surgeons.

and may the best girl win. An occasional kiss might be part of the game.

As to the old friends' kisses, circumstances may make such display of affection all right. And I don't believe any girl need lose her self-respect over such a matter.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: We are two young fellows of 23 who have just moved to the city. We are very handsome and would like to meet two young ladies, someone with whom we can dance and go to the theater. Could you help us? Tell us how to approach a girl."

"KENNIE AND IZZY." Am not at all sure of your signatures, boys. Excuse me for being so stupid. You should meet girls through your work, through old boys and, if you go to church through the church. You don't "approach" a girl until you have been introduced, and then you may ask her if she would like to go to the theater with you some time.

POLLY'S FRIEND: My dear how harrowing to be so popular! I must keep you all stirred up. It's "absolutely crazy," as you say. You will have to be firm with these boys, either make your choice of one and stick to it; make them understand that you are too young to have a "steady," and go with both; give both up and choose a third, or do as Polly is doing—"out of shun boys," as "Boys and school don't go together."

A WONDERING JEW: Sorry I puzzled you by my answer. I meant that when young people are engaged they usually are privileged to kiss and hug one another. I am afraid I don't understand the subtle difference between "petting" and "necking."

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I have some dark hairs on my face and I should like to know if you know of any hair bleach."

BOBBIE: I heard that equal parts of peroxide and ammonia will bleach hairs, Bobbie, and eventually disfigure their growth. Don't apply too often, however, as it would be hard on the skin.

PUZZLED: No harm at all in writing to both of the boys if you wish, dear, although it is customary only to write to the one who asks you to write to him. The other one need not answer if he doesn't want to.

WONDERING: Couldn't make it when you asked for an answer. Wondering. You didn't give me enough time. I think the boy likes you or he wouldn't act as he does, but he very probably isn't serious as he's too young. Don't you be serious, either.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

FRAMED by Phil

Charley Root, Middletown's gift to baseball, is expected to be relied upon by the Chicago Cubs in an effort to square the current world series with the Athletics.

Mr. Root held the Mackmen to three hits and one run, a circuit clout by Jimmy Foxx, in the series opener, before being removed for a pinch hitter, and if he proves equally effective Saturday, the entire complexion of the series will be changed.

Still one up on the Cubs, Philadelphia has an edge but there is no telling what the Cubs may accomplish now that they have broken the ice and regained a measure of their pre-series confidence. It would not be surprising if "Lefty" Grove was called upon to tame the Chicago batters.

Those Cubs, as alleged, may all be murderous batsmen, but the net still remains to be proved. To tie in the series the Cubs cannot be justly accused of committing even a misdemeanor.

Of the eighty-one putouts made by the Athletics in the first three games, thirty-six have been by the strikeout route. In the opener exactly thirteen Chicago batters fanned the breeze. In the second contest the same number of Cub batters swung viciously but just as vainly at the blinding speed balls served up by Earnshaw and Grove.

Thursday Earnshaw came back and whiffed ten batters and held Chicago to six hits, but lost 2 to 1. The Chicago victory Friday was the first win for a National League team in a series game since 1926. The Yankees won the 1927 series from the Pittsburgh Pirates in four straight while the 1928 classic, also won by the Yanks, was again destined to end in the shortest possible number of games. Then the Athletics won two in a row from the Cubs.

Earnshaw's defeat was for-ordained, according to a tradition which holds that the pitcher who strikes out the first batter in a game is doomed to defeat. Earnshaw fanned McMillan, the first player to face him, and this adage was born out.

Broadcast of the first world series game Tuesday through the medium of a radio installed at a music store on Green St., opposite the Court House, evidently threatened to divert the attention of a jury hearing a suit in Common Pleas Court because Judge R. L. Gowdy requested that the radio be turned down. It remains a question whether the volume or the character of program detracted from the jury's power of concentration.

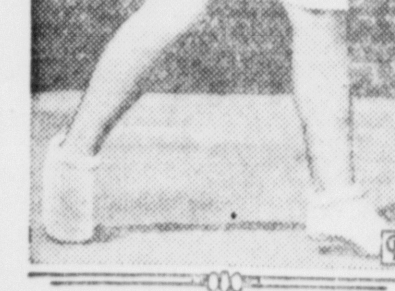

Not only did Lew Fonseca, Red castoff, achieve the batting championship of the American League, but he also distinguished himself in no little way by his defensive play this season. The Cleveland first baseman catches thrown balls in the quaggiest sort of way, but has been a long time since he has dropped one.

Particular players have often brought freak bats, gloves and other equipment into the big leagues but to find anything more freakish than the way Fonseca catches thrown and batted balls you will have to do a lot of research work.

Construction of Lew's glove is not out of the ordinary. It's the way he wears it that astounds fans and players alike. It "fits" on his fingers only and is used to protect his hand. The ball, it is explained, is caught in the web and is automatically held by the rest of the glove closing in.

"Get a basket," some fan must have yelled in the past when Lew dropped a ball. And Lew took him up on it, only using a piece of leather instead of a basket.

Fonseca had a season's batting average of .369, topping Al Simmons, Philadelphia slugger, by five points. Last year Lew batted .327 and Simmons, .351.

PROVES NATIONAL LEAGUE CAN WIN; MCCARTHY PICKS ROOT

Athletics, On Other Hand Have Too Many Pitchers To Make Choice Easy; Grove Expected To Get Call With Quinn In Reserve

By DAVIS J. WALSH
International News Service Sports Editor
PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 12.—With one of those bland changes of which baseball only could be capable, the 1929 world series had become almost a fresh document between the setting of one sun and the rising of another and today it was destined to conduct its fourth game, not as a formality, but as a grim, deadly necessity. The affair no longer was playing the buffoon. It had become drama again.

This state of affairs was effected, merely by the fact that the Chicago Cubs won a ball game yesterday from the Philadelphia Athletics. This didn't prove that the Cubs were a better club than the Athletics, it only established the fact that a National League really wasn't under obligation to lose every game of every series, until the sun shall rise no more and the moon become an arc light in limbo. It meant that a contest of some kind was being made by the National League for the first time since 1926.

This was, indeed, important. A lot of people were beginning to think, after ten straight victories by the American League, that the boys were representing the three-eyes league, with only one of them open.

Anyhow, this fourth game this afternoon figured to be the darkest item on the bill of particulars. The Cubs, trailing by two victories to one, were ready to pitch Charley Root, the man who had given them a million dollars worth of pitching in the first game and got a quarter of a pound of baloney for his trouble.

The Athletics, perhaps not quite as debonair as of yore but still quietly confident, had a choice of three men, Jack Quinn, Lefty Grove and Rube Walberg, with the comforting assurance that they couldn't go far wrong with any of them.

The game, too, was expected to have more of a crowd background than yesterday's Philadelphia premiere. For the town evidently had assumed that the Cubs were in there only because the rules demanded a minimum of four games.

BENRUS WATCH FIVE TAKES LEADERSHIP IN RECREATION LOOP

The Benrus Watch bowling quintet has replaced the Champion Greene County Lumber Co. as leaders of the Recreation League at the end of the first round of play.

The league leaders have a one-game advantage but two other teams are pressing close behind to make a three-cornered race out of it. The Red Wing Co. in third position, is rapidly assuming the role of the "dark horse" team of the league and is only separated from first place by a two-game margin.

League standing follows:
Team. Won. Lost. Pct.
Benrus Watch 11 3 .733
Gr. Co. L. Co. 10 5 .667
Red Wing Co. 9 6 .600
Buicks 8 7 .533
Lang Chevrolet Co. 5 10 .333
Arch-O-Pedic Shoes 4 11 .267

Charles Malavazos, member of Benrus Watch team, has rolled his way to the head of the bowling averages in the Recreation League with a mark of 186.12 for fifteen games. The ten high average bowlers in the league are:

Player.	G.	T.P.	AVE.

TROY OPENS LEAGUE SEASON BY VICTORY OVER GREENVILLE

Troy High inaugurated its Miami Valley League schedule by scoring a 9 to 6 victory over Greenville on the latter's gridiron Friday afternoon. The Trojan eleven led at the half, 2 to 0 as a result of a safety. A long run by Halfback Eyler put the ball on the ten-yard line and paved the way for the half. Behmert bucked the ball over and Eyler kicked goal. Greenville's touchdown came in the second half as a result of a march down the field. Kelly taking the ball over the final chalk line. The try for extra point was missed.

The game was the first league contest of the season. Originally scheduled for Saturday, it was moved up to Friday in order that members of the Troy squad might attend the Ohio State-Iowa game at Columbus Saturday.

WILMINGTON WINS

McClain High offered little resistance and Wilmington High grid-ers walked off the field with a 19 to 0 victory over the Greenfield eleven Friday at Wilmington. The first quarter touchdown resulted when Wolfe, center, recovered a Greenfield fumble. Hutchens added the extra point. Telfair scored on a forward pass and Hart plunged the line for Wilmington's other two scores.

HOME CADETS RALLY IN FINAL QUARTER TO DEFEAT DEGRAFF

Start Scoring March With Count Tied In Friday Win

DISPLAYING its winning punch in the fourth quarter to put over the deciding touchdown in the last three minutes of play, an improved O. S. and S. O. Home football eleven triumphed over DeGraff High grid-ers by a margin of 13 to 7 on the DeGraff gridiron Friday afternoon.

Home grid-ers started off auspiciously in the first quarter, marking up their first touchdown in the first minute and a half of play. Four plays carried the ball from their own forty-yard line for the score and the extra point was also good.

In the second period DeGraff came back strong to register a touchdown, add the extra point and even the count with only one minute remaining to play in the half.

The third quarter was contested on an even basis, neither team being able to gain a decided advantage, but in the fourth the cadets again hit their stride and in the ebbing moments of the game paraded down the field for the winning counter. The march started from mid-field.

Prof. Seall's boys registered a total of twelve first downs as compared with seven for DeGraff and also gained 215 yards from scrimmage against 122 yards for their opponents.

The Home team also experienced success when it took to the air, completing five out of seven attempted forward passes. DeGraff tried five forwards, completing two.

In recording its second straight victory, the Home showed marked improvement on offense and was not guilty of a single fumble, but the defense was not up to the usual standard. DeGraff went down fighting and was the scrappiest team the cadets have faced this season.

Captain R. Yowell, halfback, and McKinley, fullback, accounted for most of the ground gaining. Yowell was on the sending end of forward passes and tossed aerials accurately all over the field, while Reynolds at right end played his best game so far this year. On offense the entire team functioned smoothly. Lineups:

ADVANCE DATE OF XENIA-TROY GAME

Because it conflicts with a two-day meeting of South Central Ohio school teachers at Dayton November 8 and 9, the Miami Valley League football game between Xenia Central and Troy High, originally booked for Saturday, November 9 at Troy, has been moved up to Thursday, November 7 at 2:30. It is disclosed, there will be no school Friday, November 8 because of the teachers' meeting.

TOURISTS TO B. C.
VANCOUVER, B. C., Oct. 12.—More than 1,000,000 tourists came to British Columbia this year and spent in the neighborhood of $35,000,000, it is estimated by publicity bureau officials here.

OHIO STATE VETERANS

AROUND these men will a large portion of Ohio State University's football hopes center this fall.

Undertaking his first season as director of football at Ohio State University, Sam S. Willaman started the 1929 season with Kruskamp, Cory Eby, Young, Baskowski, Surina and several other regulars lost through graduation. However, the above men are veterans with considerable playing experience behind them. Fred Barratt, 239 pound center, proved a tower of strength in the middle of the line, while Wesley Feeler gained All-American honors at end. William Griffith paired at guard with Joe Ujehlyi last season, which bolstered the line considerably last season, while Richard Larkins is back at his old tackle post.

In the backfield, Allen Holman returns to take over his task as field general, while Charles Coffee enters his last season of competition as a halfback.

XENIA IMPERIALS WILL PLAY PIQUA KEEFER DRUGS SUNDAY

Imperials, Xenia's semi-pro football team, will invade Piqua Sunday afternoon for the second game of the season with the Keifer Drugs, an independent team with a record of fourteen consecutive victories extending over a period of two years.

"The Poison Dispensers," as they are known, have already played three games this season, winning every one. Last week the Drugs defeated West Carrollton, 12 to 0.

Incidentally, the Piqua eleven has been scored on only once. The Piqua were undefeated last season after playing a tie their opening game.

The lineup of the Imperials is expected to be strengthened in spots for the game. Last Sunday the local eleven lost its opener to Tipp City Merchants, 6 to 0 but is confident of breaking Piqua's long chain of victories Sunday.

The Sunday contest will start at 2:30 o'clock and will be played at Stein Park. Imperials are requested to meet at Geyer's at 11 a. m. Sunday.

Here are the probable starting lineups for the two teams:

MARIETTA DEFEATS OTTERBEIN 6 TO 2

MARIETTA, O., Oct. 12.—Marietta College's gridiron warriors today were off with the right foot forward in the Ohio Conference, having handed Otterbein a 6 to 2 beating in a nip-and-tuck contest on the home field here yesterday.

Both teams scored their only touchdowns in the first quarter and after that the game proved to be a bitter punting contest with neither team gaining the advantage.

Marietta's score occurred when Fullback Farren carried the ball across the final chalk mark after the oval had been brought within scoring distance by a 30-yard run by Weber, left quarterback and a pass from Weber to Northrup, a half.

TOLEDO U. DEFEATS FINDLAY TEAM 7-0
TOLEDO, O., Oct. 12.—Hearts of football fans in Findlay were heavy today while at the Toledo University campus here, the exhilaration which came with Toledo's 7-to-0 victory over Findlay, was experienced.

It was the first Northwestern Ohio Conference game of the season. The contest was put in Toledo's icebox in the first quarter when Sharpe, quarterback, skittered an end for an 18-yard run over Findlay's goal marker. The tea of Dunn, acting captain, added the extra point. Findlay was held scoreless. It made a noble attempt to score in the past period, but a bad pass spoiled whatever chances there might have been.

OHIO BOXED APPLES COMMAND PREMIUM
Choice Ohio apples packed in bushel boxes commanded a net premium of 72 cents a bushel over the same grade of apples packed in bushel baskets in experimental car-loads prepared and marketed last year by the Chesapeake Orchard Company of Lawrence County, Ohio, in cooperation with the rural economics department of the Ohio Experiment Station and the horticultural extension department of the Ohio State University.

The packing of apples in boxes is customary in the western fruit growing sections but is not practiced in Ohio. The trade has long been accustomed to eastern apples packed in barrels and baskets. The feeling has been that the box container should be reserved for a higher class product which could be offered by the western growers to a special trade at a premium price, says Chas. W. Hauck, assistant in the economics department, in discussing this experiment in marketing.

In the experiment one carload of No. 1 grade Rome Beauty apples was packed in boxes and one in baskets and the costs and returns compared. The total cost per bushel for grading and packing, including packages, liners, oiled paper, etc., and of hauling and cold storage was 74 cents for baskets and 76 cents for boxes.

The fruit was placed in cold storage immediately after packing and was sold out during the winter in small lots to retail dealers and fruit stands, a few lots going to retail stores in the West Virginia coal fields. The wholesale price of the boxes averaged $2.46 per box; of the baskets, $1.72, or a net difference of 72 cents per bushel in favor of the boxed apples.

The experiment is being repeated this year. Part of the apples will be sold as before and part will be shipped by rail to one of the large receiving markets where they will face the competition of boxed apples from the west as well as that of eastern apples in baskets and barrels.

STAMP COLLECTOR MAKES $6,000 SALE

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 12.—Alvin Good, expert Cleveland stamp collector, recently sold 800 one-cent stamps—face value, $8—for $6,000. The stamps, aged bits of square blue paper, were those of the first one-cent stamps printed by the United States Government in 1851. They were purchased by a New York firm, said to be acting as an agent for a private collector.

One stamp in the collection, Good said, was worth $500. He pointed out that to the casual observer these stamps would give the appearance of being merely a picture of the head of Benjamin Franklin, but there are countless differences, detectable only under a powerful magnifying glass, that determine the value of the stamps.

FLAGS DISPLAYED TO HONOR COLUMBUS

Xenia paid tribute Saturday to Christopher Columbus, the man who discovered America 437 years ago.

Observing "Columbus Day" as a legal holiday in honor of the great discoverer, Xenia's three banks, other financial institutions and city offices remained closed all day, while local merchants displayed flags in front of their places of business.

AUTOS COLLIDE

Both cars were slightly damaged but no one was injured when a sedan driven by Miss Maude Voris, S. Galloway St., collided with another auto driven by a Belmont resident at Main and Detroit Sts. at 7:30 p. m. Friday. Miss Voris, driving east on W. Main St., attempted to make a left turn with the green light onto N. Detroit St. according to witnesses of the accident.

OLD SCHOOL SOLD

The one-room Richland school and grounds, located in Spring Valley Twp., off the New Burlington Pike, four miles south of Xenia, were sold at public auction at the Court House Saturday morning to County Commissioner A. E. Beam for $700. The school was abandoned two years ago when New Burlington and Spring Valley schools were centralized. A three-acre tract of ground on which the brick structure stands was included in the sale.

NEW WATER PROCESS

C. ARTHUR BROWN

LORAIN, O., Oct. 12.—A new method of water coagulation which may revolutionize the water purification industry throughout the world has been developed by C. Arthur Brown, Lorain engineer. During the past nine months Brown has found that iron sulphate can be obtained more cheaply and permits better coagulation and purification of water than the present method of alum mixed with caustic iron.

Brown's process has been successfully tried in large water works plants at Wilmington, Del., and Chickasaw, Ala. Small scale experiments have been carried on here. "Iron sulphate is destined to revolutionize the water purification methods now in use," Brown declares. "When one considers that 40,000,000 persons in the United States daily use filtered water, any practical process that allows a saving is bound to become a universal method."

In recognition of the success of Brown's latest experiment he was recently awarded the Judge E. H. Gary silver medal.

CHATTY GODDESS OF CAB

By BEATRICE BURTON, Author of: "HER MAN," "MONEY LOU," "SALLY'S SHOULDERS," "MONEY LOVE," "LOVE BOUND," etc.

COPYRIGHT 1929, CENTRAL PRESS ASSN. INC., CLEVELAND, OHIO.

CHAPTER LIII

Walk, walk, walk the streets. Ache, ache, ache in the feet—and the heart.

Smile, smile, smile—with tears running down inside instead of outside the cheeks. Tears in the heart do not show through a smile.

Rebuff, rudeness, indifference, callousness—these Chatty met on every hand.

No one wanted a store girl, but Chatty shrank from telling her mother more about her troubles, her mother was burdened enough, with ill health, too little money, not enough work, anxiety.

"I have to fight this out for myself," Chatty determined, sturdily. Gradually there grew up in Chatty's mind the idea of self-sacrifice. She had done many evil things. Reforming herself and not doing them any more, was as good as far as it went.

But it didn't go far enough. If she was really to stand clean and clear before the world, the judgment of which is as harsh as it is, often, unfair, Chatty realized she must make what reparation she could.

It was not enough to tell Billie and her mother of the harm she had done, she must tell those she had harmed!

Chatty shrank from this conclusion as from a blow in the face. To tell Agnes she had stolen her diary? To tell Mr. Van Nuy she had tried to wreck his home? To tell Mrs. Van Nuy she had written an anonymous letter? Impossible! She'd die first!

But the idea persisted in her mind. The right idea has a way of persisting, whether we want it to or not.

Chatty was normally, naturally, a decent girl. All that was best in her had fallen a victim to her insatiable curiosity about the affairs of others, her determination to be first to tell, her enjoyment of the sound of her own voice. Somewhere Chatty had read a nonsense verse:

"I love its giddy rattle;
I love its fervent flow;
I love to wind my mouth up;

It is impossible for any pretty girl to seek earnestly for work in a big city, and not find some opportunities, but they were not such as she could accept. One old lady wanted a daily companion, but a part of the job was to travel with her, and Chatty felt she could not leave her mother.

Another chance she had to act as cashier in a small and rather low-class movie; but when she thoughtfully told her mother she had, at last, a job—it only paid twelve dollars a week—her mother flatly forbade her to think of it.

"Too much temptation, too much exposure to the public. No, dear, keep it up and you'll find something better than that, I know."

So the weary walk, walk, walk commenced again.

Chatty began to realize now, as never before, that she had wasted much time and effort on so-called "friends" who were of no use to her. True, Winnie would gladly have seen her friend get a job—but Winnie's only influence was with Mr. Van Nuy—and that was a closed avenue.

And Winnie's friends were not people of influential position.

George and Billie had gone away. They would be back, but not even good George had any power to find a job for a girl who couldn't furnish a reference.

The one friend who had some power and influence—David—never wanted to see her face again.

Chatty ate the rue and drank the gall of remorse, her life a failure—because she had talked too much.

One day, utterly weary and completely discouraged, Chatty dropped in an open church at noon.

It was cool and quiet, the edifice was dim and peaceful.

Chatty sat in a rear pew, just resting. Then she noted that others were coming in. Shortly, the tones of the organ stole through the still air.

Chatty was in a church which was holding a midday "comfort" service, a half hour withdrawal from the world.

The little sermon was very short; to Chatty it was very impressive.

The young minister took as his text a verse from the first epistle of John: "If we confess our sins, He is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness."

It was a very simple talk, but straight from the shoulder.

To be sorry for wrong done is good," said the minister. "But to be sorry and confess it to the wronged one, is to make the sorrow evident, and to remove the cause of failure from our minds."

Chatty thought it over very carefully. She had confessed to Billie—and felt much better, as far as Billie was concerned. Never had she felt so close to her mother, as after she had told that host of friends all the evil that was in her heart and from what ghostly fear she had been saved by the accident.

She had felt some self-respect when she told Mr. Van Nuy she was sorry she had disgraced herself in public.

But there were other wrongs she had not confessed! And something seemed to pursue her as an evil influence, something prevented her getting a job, something was

The Theater

Gloria Swanson, who has run the gamut of screen accomplishments from Mack Sennett bathing beauty to talkie star, registered another accomplishment with the radio audience Thursday night when she sang two numbers on the Victor hour broadcast by NBC.

Miss Swanson proved she has a started out as a manicurist in Stockholm, and is now one of the first families of Hollywood.

Victor McLaglen and Edmund Lowe, who made such a big hit in "What Price Glory?" have made another team-hit in "The Cock-Eyed World," the Fox talkie that is receiving considerable acclaim now. Lowe is deserting the team for one picture, however, and will work for Pathe, playing opposite Constance Bennett in "This Thing Called Love." The story is a smart comedy blending high power drama and punchy comedy and will show Lowe in an entirely different role than the parts he has played with McLaglen.

The Kelly cordage company plans to remove the machine shop to the factory building between Main and Market Sts., formerly occupied by the twine and cordage works, the original R. A. Kelly mill, which has been idle except for warehouse purposes for years.

The first severe weather of the season is being experienced by Xenians, and winter overcoats and furs are greatly in demand.

CLAIRE WINDSOR

CLAIRE Windsor earns a place in the sun in the column today by announcing her engagement to marry again. This time it is Anthony J. Tsaklakis, one of the richest young men of Alexandria, Egypt, which proves that the chick hasn't gone out of style in the movie colony. Claire was the former wife of Bert Lytel, screen player, whom she divorced.

Kit Guard, comedian who looks like a pugilist, claims to be a descendant of Danish nobility. His grandfather, Ritter Charles Kilt-Guard, was a Knight of the Danish Flag, with the official title of Ritter of Danabrog.

Guard's grandfather was an important shipping man in his country and the actor's father also followed the sea. When Kit was 14 he also shipped before the mast, but later deserted before the mast, and then drifted into the movies. Guard is playing an important role in "The Racketeer" in which Pathe features Robert Armstrong.

COMPLY WITH CODE

Eight villages in Greene County have not reported to John M. Vorys, state director of aviation, that they have complied with the provision of the new state aviation code which requires that Ohio municipalities and villages provide identification markings for the benefit of aviators.

Director Vorys has solicited the co-operation on the part of chambers of commerce, auto clubs and other civic organizations in the various county seats throughout Ohio in an endeavor to induce municipalities and villages to provide these markings. Vorys said that at least 150 municipalities have informed him the required markings have been made.

Greene County villages which have not yet reported to Vorys include: Bellbrook, Bowersville, Cedarville, Fairfield, Osborn, Jamestown, Spring Valley and Yellow Springs.

PRESSING SEASON FOR APPLES, GRAPES

SANDUSKY, O., Oct. 12.—The pressing season (at its height in the orchard and vineyard section of this widely known apple and grape producing locality. It will continue well into the fall, for at this time only the early crops are in the handling.

Both the apple and grape yields are small this harvest as compared with those of other years. The result is a lessened production of cider and grape juice, which is being reflected in slightly increased prices.

There was never any great quantity of cider pressed in the so-called Sandusky area, but "wine"—that's another matter.

While the day of prohibition grape-growing and wine-making was the chief industry of Sandusky and environs, including the Lake Erie Islands to the northeast. Today the word "wine" is taboo among the grape men, and, as a result, the old-timer has a hard battle to conform with present requirements.

FARM NOT WORTH TRADE IS CLAIMED

HAMILTON, O., Oct. 12.—There is a farm of eighty-four acres in Hocking County on which is a house without roof, windows and doors. The soil is not tillable, being almost mountainous. Roads to that place are such that travel by auto is impossible.

This is a description of the farm given in a suit on file here by which Charles and Sarah Miller seek to cancel a pretended deal by which they were to give in exchange property in New Miami worth $1,500. They charge misrepresentation by James D. Hutchinson and others who said, it is alleged, that farm was only ten miles from Chillicothe whereas it is twenty-five miles by air and fifty miles by road.

Twelve boys and girls compose the cast. The operetta will be produced under the direction of William Hugh Miller, musical director in the Xenia public schools.

PLEADS NOT GUILTY

Arraigned in Common Pleas Court Friday on an indictment for burglary and larceny in connection with the alleged theft of five chickens valued at $5 from a barn on the farm of Omer Sturgeon last June 22, Owen Clemens entered a not guilty plea. The date for his trial has not been assigned by Judge R. L. Gowdy.

BIG HEARTED RIDGE, N. Y., Oct. 12.—Two perfectly formed hearts, which apparently had functioned as one, were found in a turkey owned by Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Kuhn. The gobbler had been struck fatally by an auto.

NOTES

The first luncheon of the seniors was held at noon Wednesday, October 2. These luncheons are going to be held the first Wednesday of each month for the remainder of the year. Members of the senior class are eligible to attend. Two tables decorated in proper autumn colors were set for the occasion. Before being seated the school song was sung. For the sum of thirty-five cents a meal consisting of veal birds, scalloped potatoes, dressing, vegetable salad, rolls, ice cream and cake, was served. A radio program was given after the luncheon. The bell for classes sounded shortly and everyone left with the idea of trying to move the first Wednesday up the next time.

Miss Olive Allen has returned to Central High after an illness of four or five days. Miss Allen was at her home in Waynesville during her illness.

Miss Helen Miller taught in Miss Allen's place during her absence.

During the past few days two senior girls have been excused from their afternoon classes by Mr. Woodruff to go to Spring Hill School to help care for the large classes of first and second grade pupils.

The girls that are having a chance at practice teaching at present

Roberta Ralls, a member of the senior class has returned to school after having been confined at her home with a nervous breakdown. Her condition was thought serious for a while.

Central students seem to have their hard luck troubles this year. There has been quite a few football casualties and automobile accidents and what-not. The latest victims are Burton Baker and Charles Montgomery. A Ford coupe driven by Baker overturned at a corner near the fair grounds injuring Montgomery to the extent of a cut about the head and a broken arm. Baker as well as two other boys escaped injury.

A pencil machine has been placed in the principal's office whereby students may drop a nickel in and receive a pencil. The pencils have the complete 1929 football schedule printed on them.

The senior and junior classes have been extended an invitation to visit Oberlin College, Saturday, October 26.

Quite a program has been arranged for the day including a tour of the campus, visit to classes, prize scholarship examinations, special luncheon, football game, special showing of Oberlin movies and a college dance. This is a program that sounds inviting to every one.

Twenty prize scholarships of the value of $300 each, are to be awarded on the basis of competitive examinations to be held on that day at the college.

Plans are being made for a very fine year in basketball in the junior school or have dropped out of school. Coach Patterson has some promising youths to look forward to and should come forth with a fighting team. Among the most promising are Luttrell, Adair, Hook and Dawson from last year's reserve squad and Batson, Dudley, Weingart, Bath, Brown, Latimer, McElree, Fawcett, Yeakley, Stiles and others who graduated from the grades last year.

Several Dayton junior high teams have been approached in an effort to open up athletic relations with the Central juniors. Fairview, Oakwood, Westwood and Belmont are among those approached. Coach Patterson does not expect to issue his initial call for candidates until about the last of November.

The Chevrolet Red, "O. K. That Counts" Tag Protects Your Used Car Purchase

Used car buyers in this community have learned that they can have perfect confidence in any used car that has attached to its radiator cap the Chevrolet red "O. K. that Counts" tag.

Under the terms of Chevrolet's used car policy, originated to protect the used car buyer, every reconditioned car we offer for sale is identified by means of this red tag attached to the radiator cap. This tag is the purchaser's assurance that the car to which it is attached has been gone over carefully by expert mechanics—that it has been thoroughly reconditioned—and that the price is based on the car's actual ability to render service.

Due to the great popularity of the new Chevrolet Six in this community, we have on hand at this time an unusually large group of these "O. K. d" cars. If you are in the market for a dependable used car—come in. You are certain to find the car you want—at a price that will positively save you money.
